

'Old Arch' Offers Million to Ingemar

MONTREAL (UPI)—Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore—"Old Man Dynamite" who again knocked out challenger Yvon Durelle—today planned a "quick money" South American tour next month while negotiating for a "three-million-dollar" fight with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson.

The ring's all-time knockout king and record-equalling light-heavyweight defender will receive a guaranteed $175,000 for belting out Canadian Durelle Wednesday night at 232 of the third round, and he wants to pick up "a couple hundred thousand" in September and October fights in Argentina and Brazil.

Manager Jack Kearns says he has relayed to heavyweight ruler Johansson the offer of a $1,000,000 guarantee to defend against 43-year-old Moore. In Kearns' cable to Johansson at Goteborg, Sweden, he said the million guarantee would be in a bank when Ingemar signs.

Kearns declined to identify the "very important Canadian and American interests" he says will put up the guarantee but predicted a Moore-Johansson fight would draw a $3,000,000 gate.

"Certainly I'd like to fight Johansson," Moore said, "but right now I want to get busy with South American fights. Yes, I may make a defence down there."

Another successful defence would break the record he equalled Wednesday night before 11,555 at the Montreal Forum, where his eighth division's mark set by Maxie Rosenbloom. Maxie lost the title when he risked it the ninth time against Bob Olin in 1934.

Archie stretched his all-time pro boxing knockout record to 128 when he floored Durelle. At Goteborg, Johansson said today he would gladly give Moore a shot at his title for a million-dollar guarantee—after he meets Floyd Patterson again. "Old Archie is welcome if the money is right, but only after I have fought Floyd Patterson again," Johansson said.

"I haven't heard a word from either Moore or his manager," Ingemar said when informed about the offer.

Ingemar said he was not surprised that Moore knocked out Durelle.

"I had expected that. Moore is an excellent fighter and the fans would certainly pay a lot of money to see him fight me for the heavyweight title."

Promoter Eddie Quinn apparently lost money on Wednesday's scheduled 15-rounder, which had been postponed twice—once by Archie's bruised left heel and once by an emergency ear operation on Archie's wife.

Quinn announced the gross gate at $140,519 and the net gate at $122,627. In addition, the telecast to the United States brought a $125,000 fee.

Moore's $175,000 guarantee was against 40 per cent of the net gate and TV money, totalling only about $98,050. He'll take the guarantee. Durelle was guaranteed $15,000 against 20 per cent of gate and TV, only if Moore's percentages equalled Moore's guarantee. Durelle will receive only his $15,000.

General Scene of Digging with Trial Island in Background

FIRST OF A SERIES

Waterfront Diggers Seek Record of Past

Starting herewith and continuing daily for two weeks The Times will publish an authoritative report on one of the most interesting projects on this part of the island for many years. The author, in the article below, explains the project in his opening paragraph.

By WILSON DUFF

Curator of Anthropology, Provincial Museum

Down at the east end of McNeill Bay or Shoal Bay, between Gonzales Hill and Oak Bay Golf Course, is a beautiful rocky point with twin beaches along its sides. It's a favorite spot for picnics, fishing, and driftwood gathering. It also happens to be an archaeological site, and for the last several days we have had our imaginations at work, wondering about the people who enjoyed this spot before us, 200 or 2,000 years ago.

Now we are going to find out many things about them. We do not have any magic time machine to transport us back through the centuries to prehistoric Indian days, we are going to use the pure detective work of archaeology.

For the next two weeks, a Provincial Museum crew will be conducting a "dig" on the site, and we'll keep Times readers informed our findings with a daily report.

The crew will consist of myself, Assistant Curator Michael Kew, our summer assistants John Sendley and Richard Cox, and assorted volunteers. Cleave Hughes, former chief inspector in the mines department, has already helped out by surveying the site. Mrs. Edith Cross and other capable amateur archaeologists are standing by to do some serious digging. It may be that we can also make room for other interested volunteers if they are willing to abide by the rules of the dig.

Big Offensive Claimed By Anti-Castro Forces

MIAMI (AP)—A spokesman for anti-Castro groups in Miami said today a full-scale counter-revolutionary offensive is under way in central Cuba.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told the Miami News that the insurgents are former Cuban soldiers and defectors from Fidel Castro's army who landed near Trinidad from the Dominican Republic.

Jose Eleuterio Pedraza, former Cuban general, is commanding the task force by short-wave radio from the Dominican Republic, the spokesman said. Anti-Castro leaders here said they talked with Pedraza by telephone this morning.

Former dictator Fulgencio Batista is not a participant in the movement, the spokesman said.

"He is a closed book in Cuba now."

Meanwhile, gunmen struck in Havana today as Castro personally directed the roundup of counter-revolutionaries.

Police exchanged shots with anti-Castro gunmen near the Mexican and Peruvian embassies and the directorate building of Castro's 26th of July revolutionary movement in central Havana.

Occupants of a speeding automobile sprayed the directorate with machine-gun fire, police said.

Castro was leading his forces against 60 or 70 Cubans in Las Villas province. The insurgents were reported to be encircled.

'SILENT TREATMENT' URGED FOR KHRUSHCHEV

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) urged the American people today to be "civil but silent" during Soviet Premier Khrushchev's visit to the U.S. next month.

"Let there be no cheers for the red dictator, no crowds assembled to greet him, no flattery or flowers. Let our people be civil but silent," Dodd told the Senate in a prepared speech.

Dodd, former prosecutor at the Nuremberg war crimes trial, called the invitation to Khrushchev a "dreadful wrong." He said the visit was equivalent to "having Hitler in the White House."

Dodd called the Soviet Premier the "hangman of the Ukraine" and the "butcher of Budapest."

"I hope that during Khrushchev's visit we shall hear church bells in the land tolling their remembrance for the murdered millions behind the Iron Curtain," he said. "I hope that there will be public observance of prayer for the deliverance of the captive nations."

HIT BY FIRE HOSE

Child Dies Of Injuries

A five-year-old Saanich boy knocked by a flailing fire hose on to sharp rocks Wednesday died of brain and other injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

Dead is Donald Richard Stewart, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan Stewart, 3314 Fircrest Place.

The lad was hurled 20 feet by a catapulting fire hose being unreeled by Saanich firemen putting out a grass fire near the Stewart home at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The hose had been connected to a hydrant at Knight and Oakcrest and was being unwound by a truck driving down Knight on to Fircrest.

SNAGGED ON COUPLING

Donald Stewart and a friend, Russell Batstone, 1541 McRae, were running along Knight when the hose, snagged by a jammed coupling on the truck, suddenly drew taut, then came barrelling toward the two boys.

Russell managed to get out of the way but the hose whipped the Stewart boy off his feet and sent him crashing in to a sharp rock outcropping.

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Royal Laotian government forces were reported today to be reoccupying villages in northern Laos following a partial withdrawal by pro-Communist rebels.

Prowling Red Warship In Crash

KIEL, Germany (AP)—A Soviet destroyer, prowling in the western Baltic where NATO exercises are in progress, collided in fog with a small German coastal freighter today.

The bow of the 300-ton freighter Christel was crushed but her crew of six escaped injury.

The skipper of the Christel messaged that the Soviet destroyer, stood by, then made off into the fog with two other Soviet vessels after it was clear that the freighter was in no danger. The skipper was unable to get the name of the Soviet destroyer.

German naval sources said they suspect the three war vessels were operating in the area because the Russians know that Britain, Denmark, Norway and West German naval units are on manoeuvres.

Dig that McNeill Bay project.

If th' radar line kin repel that attack, guess it kin withstand anything.

Glad them bridge workers are back on th' job. Thet strike caught 'em with their spans down.

Attack Levelled By Ex-RCAF Man

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—Group Capt. Charles Limbrick, retired RCAF radar chief, said today the Mid-Canada warning line was a "colossal blunder and waste of money."

He said he strenuously opposed construction of the electronic warning line along the 55th parallel but "the scientists rammed it down our throats."

"I was completely and utterly against this abortion of a Mid-Canada line and nearly lost my job over it," Group Capt. Limbrick said in an interview.

"In fact, I was relieved of my duties for a couple of weeks when I refused to sign an order for the experimental equipment."

Later, Defence Minister Pearkes told reporters after a cabinet meeting that the Mid-Canada line is an essential element in the North American warning system.

He said the original identification of enemy planes would be made by the Distant Early Warning line in the Arctic but the route of enemy bombers would be lost if it were not for the Mid-Canada line.

The Mid-Canada line would establish the route of hostile bombers before they entered the Pinetree radar control system, he said. There was "no likelihood" of an attacking force escaping detection.

Group Capt. Limbrick retired last year as RCAF director of radio warfare. Before that, he was director of guided missiles. He was responsible for Canadian radar defences during the Second World War. "I'm no amateur at this business and know what I'm talking about," he said.

Wanted Big Control Centres Instead

The group captain said he had proposed construction of eight big control radars similar to the one at RCAF Air Division headquarters at Metz, France.

In talks here Tuesday, Defence Minister Pearkes and U.S. Defence Secretary Neil McElroy agreed that more heavy radars will have to be built in Canada to control interceptors and missiles.

Group Capt. Limbrick telephoned The Canadian Press today after reading a published CP article describing construction of the Mid-Canada Line as a "colossal goof."

"That article is absolutely right," he said. "The only difference is that I knew about it five years ago."

He said the Mid-Canada Line cost $250,000,000 though the original estimate was less than $100,000,000.

He said $100,000,000 could have been saved by construction of his proposed eight heavy radars and the necessity of building more radars now would have been averted.

Indians lived here, or when, it may have been 200 years ago or 5,000.

Residents of the area need not worry that we will destroy their picnic spot. We plan to dig only two trenches, and we shall fill them in before we leave.

The credit for initiating this dig belongs mostly to our two summer assistants, John and Richard, with the incredible energy and enthusiasm of teen-agers, have become fine archaeologists and authorities on the prehistoric sites around Victoria.

They have searched every bay and cove within bicycle and outboard range of Victoria, and their private collections of artifacts grow larger almost every day.

Two summers ago we sent them to Vancouver to work with Dr. Charles Borden of the University of B.C. on the famous Marpole Midden, and there they received their first professional training. Last year, John was our summer assistant and dug with Michael Kew on Pender Island. This spring he dug again with Dr. Borden in the Fraser Canyon before joining us again as assistant.

Artifacts Already Collected

The "Terrible Twins" have known about the midden on McNeill Bay for a long time, as it is quite close to Richard's home and a favorite fishing spot.

By surface collecting and test digging they have accumulated almost 50 artifacts from the site. They have planned to excavate it themselves in the evenings, until we decided that it would be better if the museum sponsored a full-dress "dig." Up until now we haven't had the trained staff to do much archaeology, and this will be our largest single dig.

It is not a simple matter to excavate an archaeological site, nor one to be undertaken lightly. A midden is like a written record of the past which can be read only once, because the process of "reading" it destroys it.

Amateur collectors should keep that in mind when they contemplate digging in a site just to get relics. That isn't archaeology, it is vandalism, and we'll say more about that in a later article.

The first step in excavating an archaeological site is to obtain permission to dig from the owner. We thank Oak Bay Reeve George Murdoch for granting us permission on behalf of the municipality.

The second step is to survey and map the site in precise detail, so that every "find" can be located exactly both horizontally and vertically. This work was completed on Wednesday, and the actual digging was begun.

Digging is not done with anything as crude as a shovel. The midden material is removed with trowels and dust pans, and sifted through a screen so that nothing is overlooked.

The most important finds are the "artifacts," that is, tools and implements made by man. But we are also careful to save shells, fish bones, bird bones and everything else that will give us information on the food habits and other customs of the former inhabitants.

We fill notebooks with our observations, fill out forms, and take numerous photographs, in an effort to preserve a complete record of the site as our digging destroys it. This is tedious work, but it is also exciting as the patterns of early life on the site begin to reveal themselves.

What will we find out by anointing into the lives of these prehistoric Victorians? We may learn how long ago they camped here.

European trade goods would indicate a recent age, but certain types of harpoons and other implements would indicate a time thousands of years ago. Perhaps we'll find a good charcoal or bone sample which will give a precise radiocarbon date.

We may find out why they camped on this spot, what kinds of fish they caught, whether they went out to nearby islands to collect birds or hunt seals, and what implements they used to do these things. We may even find evidence of what these Indians were like physically.

By comparing our artifact assemblage with finds from other places, we may be able to guess where these people came from. One thing is fairly sure: by the end of the month we shall be able to write a very early chapter in the history of Victoria.

Citizens Must Grasp Mental Health Facts

The speed with which British Columbia can provide proper mental health facilities depends on the understanding of the problem by the citizens. Dr. Mathew Ross, medical director American Psychiatric Association said here Wednesday.

He is conducting a survey of mental health needs and resources for the B.C. government, appearing at Nanaimo today, Vancouver Friday, Nelson Tuesday, Kelowna Wednesday, Kamloops Thursday next week and Prince George Friday, August 21.

He will return here briefly Monday for technical talks and says he plans to make a submission to the government in August, 1960. The APA has 11,500 physician members and is the leading professional society of psychiatrists in North America.

Headquartered at Washington, D.C., Doctor Ross is being assisted by provincial and federal health services and other professional consultants, several of whom are already at work probing the administration and methods of the various provincial mental institutions.

Dr. Ross appears to have set his hearings with partial idea of publicizing and making the layman hear and understand the mental health problem.

He wants to know Boyish, although nearing 40, Dr. Ross doesn't hesitate to halt any testimony and call on the public in his audience: "Have you any questions to ask? This is for you, you know."

And he reminded the public, "Anyone at any time is welcome to send me anything they feel would be of value." He may be reached in care of B.C. division, Canadian Mental Health Association, or through the provincial health department.

As the various groups and associations submitted their briefs, Dr. Ross showed an ability to listen carefully for 15 minutes then sum up the meat of the presentation in a minute.

And he put his finger on each sore spot. "Suppose the APA says fine, you should have these homes, how do you finance?"

"Don't we have to get someone else on the team... these fellows who have the bonfires?"

Who'll Pay for It? "I would like to get some idea of what people think. Are they willing to pay a little higher in taxes to get the facilities they want?"

Dr. Ross listened intently as Richard Broughton, speaking as a private member of the Canadian Mental Health Association, explained that the government is attempting to give mental health care to patients for $1.50 a day, while a private asylum at New Westminster charges $18 a day.

"The government says you get care at $1.50 a day, except for the family who has no choice but to send a mental patient away so long as there is a lack of a family physician with a good knowledge of psychiatry. If community hospitals accepted psychiatric patients for treatment, many illnesses could be treated, especially during the acute phase, in a few days or weeks."

He added not all cases can be treated in the community but many ways would be suggested during his survey, for communities to relieve the strain on mental hospitals.

"How rapidly such facilities can develop... depends on how understanding the average citizen is of the reactions of mentally ill persons."

PUBLIC INVESTIGATION OPENS

Mental Health Facilities 'Shocking'

By PETE LOUDON

A shocking scarcity of all types of care and facilities for the mentally ill exists in this area.

Although professionals in health and social work departments and dedicated volunteers in community organizations are working hard, they lack unity and central organization.

The situation was outlined Wednesday in eight briefs presented to Dr. Mathew Ross, medical director American Psychiatric Association. He held his first hearing in a survey being conducted into mental health services, at government request.

Social and health workers and representatives of several community groups interested in mental health, filled every seat at the hearing opened at the Legislative Buildings.

Spade Called Spade

They pulled no punches in telling of the situation. Several said later they wished Health Minister Eric Martin could have attended to hear the submissions.

The hearing left one point ringing in the ears of laymen present—although there are more persons in hospital beds in Canada with mental illness than are confined for all other illnesses combined, Victoria has only 24 beds available to the mentally ill in this community—and there is always a large waiting list.

Victoria Branch, Canadian Mental Health Association, charged also:

Mental patients awaiting transportation to Essondale often spend up to 36 hours in city jail "where there is no trained staff and no facilities for treatment."

Must Await Ferry

Only transportation service available to the mentally ill is the Victoria-Vancouver ferry. "This at times can create havoc... once fog interrupted service for several days... employees were on strike for several weeks... a critical situation arose."

Senile patients occupy 300 beds in Victoria, yet it is "almost impossible to have anyone over the age of 70 committed to the provincial mental hospital." It is first necessary that the patient commit some dangerous act, or a dangerous situation is certified... before commitment can be effected.

There are some 600 alcoholics in Victoria. There is no provision for adequate treatment. But most urgent cases are treated at the psychiatric unit at Jubilee Hospital.

There are 100 children on Vancouver Island, most of them in this area, who require admittance to a school for defectives now. But the Woodlands School in New Westminster has a waiting list of 400.

A shortage of trained staff in Greater Victoria makes follow-up care of discharged treatments impossible to carry out efficiently.

The brief, prepared by Mrs. Edith Frankham and submitted by city welfare administrator William Hooson, ended with these recommendations:

There should be a psychiatric hospital on southern Vancouver Island with an out-patient department.

More trained workers are required to assist discharged patients in the area.

A child guidance clinic should be set up for the Nanaimo and north Island areas.

A psychiatric team should be in residence at Brannan Lake boys industrial school.

For Youngsters

There should be government money for expansion of treatment centres similar to the Sevenoaks Centre, operated here for emotionally disturbed youngsters, by the Family and Children's Service.

A residential school for defective children, similar to Woodlands, should be established in this area.

There should be a temporary residence for retarded children and a vocational workshop and shelter for older youngsters and adult defectives.

City health department educator Keith MacDonald proposed there should be a community mental health clinic within the Victoria-Esquamalt public health service. He said a federal health grant would be available to help pay for a competent psychiatrist.

Victoria psychiatrist, Dr. D. E. Alcorn, who now undertakes most of the city-referred work felt, "an out-patient clinic would be a duplication of services and an expense to the taxpayers," because there is a 24-bed psychiatric unit at Jubilee Hospital which also handles out-patients.

Dr. Ross was critical of the small size of the unit. He said he wasn't the first to state that no hospital could call itself a general hospital unless 10 per cent of its beds were set aside for mental cases. The 420-bed hospital should have a minimum of 42 beds in its psychiatric wing.

Mr. MacDonald also proposed in-service psychiatric training for all health workers of the community and development of "a mental health point of view" among professional people who "play key roles at strategic times in the lives of individuals—teachers, nurses, lawyers, clergymen, social workers and doctors."

'Crackpots' View

This was echoed to a degree by Victoria second-hand dealer W. A. Scott who also appeared at the hearing.

Introducing himself as a "crackpot" speaking for the crackpots, he said he felt lawyers, churches, politicians and chamber of commerce officials and politicians had the greatest need for psychiatry.

Dr. Leyda Lythgoe, a Victoria psychiatrist in private practice, said as far as she was concerned, "Each day should be 48 hours long."

She drew Dr. Ross' interest with a description of an emergency service which has developed here, the "telephone reassurance service."

She said often a patient who has been released from care gets panicky at home, can't reach his own doctor, but needs a friend right then.

Curative Talk

But he has the number of the Jubilee clinic. Several hundred such patients in the course of the year use the number to reach a nurse or doctor who just sit down and talk for five or seven minutes. The conversation becomes important therapy, she believes.

Family and Children's Service director David Woodworth charged children are suffering needlessly because there has been improper planning of mental health services.

"We feel many children are committed to industrial schools who should not have been committed. They appear before juvenile court without having preventive treatment offered."

Sometimes they return two and three times to the school because there was no facility for treatment of maladjustments during the first visit.

He said the child guidance clinic which operates in the area does a good job of diagnosis but there are no local facilities for treatment. And the Sevenoaks Centre will require government sponsorship if it is to continue, he indicated. There are eight boys there now.

A. E. Raymond, acting-president of Greater Victoria Association for Retarded Children said additional hospital accommodation is the most pressing need in B.C. He said Woodlands School, with its waiting list of 400, is inadequate. He proposed small, strategically-located residential homes throughout the province, and a home-training plan. There must be government assistance to research, he added.

J. D. Heinekey, representing Cerebral Palsy Association, said his group now caters to 72 youngsters, and there was a definite need for a residential school in this area.

Shock treatment at the coal-face

One of the rigorous tests passed with honours by the Tudor Oyster Prince, was conducted 1,000 feet underground. This new self-winding wrist-watch, sponsored by Rolex of Geneva, was worn continuously by a miner, for no less than 252 hours at the coal-face.

Working with drill, hatchet, mandril, shovel and sledge, his Oyster Prince suffered such vibration as few self-winding watches would withstand.

How did the watch react? Incredibly enough, at the end of the six weeks, during which the watch was neither removed from his wrist nor once reset, it had to be corrected by no more than a few seconds. This is testimony, indeed, to the remarkable protection and accuracy given by its two exclusive patented Rolex features—the permanently waterproof and dustproof Oyster case, and the unique "rotor" self-winding mechanism.

We can now show you this remarkable, but modestly priced, Tudor Oyster Prince, cased in gleaming stainless steel, and with a matching expanding bracelet.

Little Rock Race Fight Dies Down

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP) — Four Negro children headed back to school today with their white classmates today with police standing by to crush any further mass protests by segregationists.

Officers used clubs and fire hoses to break up a parade of children near Central High School when integrated classes opened at two schools Wednesday, but peace apparently was in sight today.

Twenty-four demonstrators were arrested Wednesday.

NORMAL IN SCHOOLS

In the schools themselves, officials said everything was normal.

One segregationist said he knew of no plans for any rallies today.

Two Negroes went to Central High Wednesday but only one will go back today, said Mrs. L. C. Bates, Arkansas president of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

She said Elizabeth Eckford went the first day of school only to talk with her counselor. Elizabeth, one of nine Negroes enrolled at Central in 1957, has gained enough credits through correspondence to enter college.

ONLY ONE AT CENTRAL

That leaves Jefferson Thomas, 16, another veteran of 1957, as the only Negro at Central. He is a senior.

Thomas said the students at Central "didn't do anything or say anything." He said he believes their attitude is changing.

"They seem to understand that integration is not so bad and even if they don't approve it, violence is not the way to solve it," he said.

Three teenagers were arrested at a segregation rally at the legislative buildings and 21 at the outburst near Central. The boys were picked up after Smith said he found nine tear-gas bombs in their car. Since they were on state property, they were turned over to state police.

Lieut. Paul McDonald of the state police said no charges had been filed and the youths were turned over to their parents. McDonald said an investigation is continuing.

Faubus Raps Police Chief For 'Black-Jacking' Woman

DARDANELLE, Ark. (UPI) — Gov. Orval Faubus said

U.S. HOUSE REJECTS SOFT LABOR BILL

WASHINGTON (AP)—The House of Representatives Wednesday rejected 245 to 132 a bill which the AFL-CIO said would get the crooks out of unions without harming legitimate labor organizations. The vote left before the House a much stricter anti-corruption measure backed by President Eisenhower and a bill its Democratic sponsors say treads middle ground.

Wednesday night that anti-integration demonstrators at Little Rock's Central High School were "blackjacked by police because they stood up for what they believed."

Faubus, who referred to the forceful methods through which Little Rock police put down a near-riot at Central High School was racially integrated Wednesday, spoke at a chicken fry at Mt. Nebo, west of this central Arkansas town.

Faubus criticized as "integrationists, puppets and hypocrites" Little Rock police chief Eugene G. Smith and Little Rock school board president Everett Tucker.

About 600 persons heard the speech.

"I don't know what I can do about it (the Little Rock situation)," said Faubus, "but if there is anything, I'll do it."

He held up a newspaper carrying photos of police in action at Central High. The governor said chief of police Smith "personally blackjacked a woman" during the dispatch of the demonstrators.

He accused police of tearing up an American flag being waved by one of the integration protesters.

Faubus encircled Central High with national guardsmen to prevent integration in 1957. Last year, he closed all Little Rock's high schools to preserve segregation.

Ironworkers Win Big Wage Hike As 7-Week Strike Comes to End

VANCOUVER (CP)—Work on $90,000,000 worth of construction in British Columbia will soon resume following settlement late Wednesday of a seven-week strike by ironworkers.

Members of Local 97 of the International Association of Bridge, Structural and Ornamental Ironworkers (IABO) voted by 96.9 per cent majority to accept the settlement proposal.

The dispute, which tied up work on several major projects, including a $23,000,000 bridge across Vancouver harbor, was one of the stormiest on B.C.'s troubled labor front.

Provincial Labor Minister Lyle Wicks said the settlement was "a major development which will mark a different trend in the troubled labor-management relations we have had in the last two months."

The Steel Erectors' Association of B.C., which represented 15 companies involved in the dispute, earlier in the day accepted a new agreement worked out with the union and a conciliation officer.

Observers say the settlement — for an increase of 57 cents an hour over a 27-month period on a former rate of $2.62 — is one of the biggest wage gains in the history of B.C. labor.

The employers surrendered a claim for cuts in a travelling allowance. A six-cent installment of the wage boost, scheduled to start on resumption of work, was made retroactive to the date of the strike.

The union members will get 32 cents an hour retroactive to Jan. 1, another 12 cents next April 1 and 7 cents for welfare benefits next Jan. 1.

Union business agent Norman Eddison said there is a shortage of ironworkers and the union may not be able to fill all requests for labor immediately.

A management spokesman said work on all the projects may be back to normal by early next week.

The southern end of the Second Narrows Bridge near Vancouver was the key factor in legal actions between the union and Dominion Bridge Company Limited.

Second Look at Pensions

AS ELSEWHERE, THE CANADIAN Government has received second thoughts on the problems of old age but what these thoughts may mean in public policy is not clear yet.

After coming to office in 1957 Mr. Diefenbaker assured Parliament that the Government was planning "a rounded and effective contributory social security system over and above that which already exists. . . I want to see early action." That action, he said, would be directed immediately to the creation of a new and much more generous old age pension system, financed by every worker's regular contributions during his active life.

This program was to be based, more or less, on the American contributory system which Mr. Diefenbaker greatly admired and intended to imitate, within Canada's special circumstances.

Accordingly, Professor Robert Clark, of the University of British Columbia, was asked to make a quick investigation of the American system and remodel it for introduction into Canada. It was hoped then that Professor Clark could complete this study within three or four months since the Government was in a tearing hurry to put its hopeful reforms into execution.

As might have been expected in such a complex area, the investigator needed 13 months to write a valuable report of 727 pages. But the report contained no recommendations and in that respect was a striking disappointment. Whether Professor Clark was asked by the Government to leave it in those vague terms is not known but vague they were apart from their excellent analysis of the American system.

The analysis was sufficient, however, to show that the American system, applied here in almost any form, would raise the annual cost of old age pensions to a huge figure. This the Government obviously did not wish to undertake when it was already deep in deficits. The cost would mean heavy direct contributions from the Canadian worker, a kind of new tax, and also, for some years anyway, heavy contributions from the Government which is only the taxpayers collectively.

The Government was clearly shocked by the professor's figures. The easy promise of a vast and comprehensive old age pension system withered under the hard light of the financial facts.

At the recent session of Parliament Mr. Monteith, the minister of health and welfare, announced glumly that the Government did not intend to legislate on old age pensions just now. Will it do so at the next session? Not likely unless the Government's financial position has greatly improved and the taxpayers, paying this year's increased taxes, are ready to accept still higher rates.

The Toronto Star believes the Government is following not a financial but a political timetable in this area. That is to say, departmental study in 1959; study by a parliamentary committee in 1960; and popular action in 1961 just before the next general election.

This is to rate the Government pretty low, far too low, we hope. Surely the problem of the aged—whether the nation can afford to spend a lot more money on it or not—is not to be made a political football? But evidently, in financial terms, it cannot be settled as cheaply or as quickly as the Government had supposed.

Hole In the Dyke

THE PRAIRIE GAP IN CANADA's radar defence lines will no doubt be filled as a result of the visit of Mr. Neil McElroy, the U.S. Secretary of Defence. At present the Pinetree network, which controls jet interceptors and anti-aircraft missiles, is not operative between Winnipeg and Dawson Creek, although it extends to the east and west coasts respectively from those points. Obviously such a large hole in the dyke is an invitation to any invader and should be filled if the defence line as a whole is to have any real meaning.

The thought that has deterred Ottawa so far, of course, is that any such precautions will no doubt be temporary in any case—an interim measure until new developments in missile warfare render present defences obsolete. How long the interim period will last is difficult to say.

Apparently in the opinion of the U.S. Defence Secretary it will be sufficiently long to justify an immediate expenditure of up to $100 millions on completing the Pinetree line. Of this amount the United States might provide two-thirds, as it did for the other Pinetree installations.

Mr. Pearkes has agreed with his American colleague that more radars are needed both for detection and intercept operations, and will seek cabinet approval. The deficit-harassed Government may be reluctant to embark on any vast new expenditure, but there appears to be little choice if Canada is to keep up even a semblance of self-defence.

The Rush for Protection

AS USUAL, A POLIO SCARE has sent thousands of Montrealeers hurrying to the vaccination clinics to gain protection they should have attended to long ago. Some 20,000 have received the treatment during the past two days, motivated by the polio outbreak which has claimed 184 patients so far this year, in contrast to five at this time last year. There have been twelve fatalities.

It is to be noted that of the 184 victims, only seven were vaccinated persons and these suffered only mild attacks of the disease.

That is persuasive evidence, and it is in line with the experience in other cities which have had polio outbreaks in the last year or two. The rush of Montrealeers to be vaccinated, even at this late date, indicates that the lesson has been driven home.

The Net Loss

ONE OF THE LITTLE-NOTED losses of the recent business recession, as The Windsor Star observes, is a sharp fall in immigration. "For the first time in many years," The Star says, "immigration has failed to offset the loss of migrating Canadians."

In the second quarter of this year the natural increase in population (births less deaths) was 83,000, but the total population increase, including immigration, was only 82,000. A similar loss occurred in the last quarter of 1958.

"It wasn't long ago," The Star recalls, "that our political leaders were talking of a population goal of 25,000,000 by 1965. On the basis of the current inflow of new settlers we'll be much longer meeting that objective."

But the recent inflow, it is to be hoped, will change. The Government deliberately reduced immigration at a time of heavy unemployment and grave doubt about the economic future. As unemployment declines sharply and prosperity increases, the Government should, and presumably will, encourage a larger movement of immigrants, especially from Britain.

In Britain, unfortunately, immigration has been discouraged by a good deal of irresponsible journalism which has pictured Canada as a depressed country offering little opportunity to newcomers. It may take some time to overcome these distortions.

Up, Up and Away . . .

THE BRITISH AERONAUTICAL Society promises us that "some sort of manpowered craft will be in the air before the end of 1959."

Ever since early experimenters tried out feathered bird wings and other contrivances to keep them aloft under their own steam, would-be fliers have dreamed of flight using only muscle-power. Now, with an arrangement of pedals and inflatable wings, it is hoped that a two-man tandem may be put into the air.

Alongside modern airliners and jet fighters, of course, such an achievement seems of small moment. It is not likely that the pedal-pushers will ever win wide popularity, if only because of the physical effort involved. But there will be a certain amount of self-satisfaction for man in equalling the birds at their own game. After all, as any bird could point out, man so far is really only a passenger in his own machines.

'They'll Never Believe Me If This One Gets Away'

FROM WASHINGTON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

The Labor Reform Tangle

THE labor reform fight has produced the worst legislative tangle, the most flagrant lobbying, and the greatest outpour of heat without light in the recent history of the House of Representatives.

Yet it is worth trying to thread one's way through the tangle. Three different bills are involved, to begin with. Least severe is the bill sponsored by Rep. John F. Shelley, Dem., of California. It mainly calls for disclosure of union financial transactions. It has been called the "milk and water" bill. But it is actually roughly comparable to the quite significant labor reform bill passed in New York State by Gov. Nelson Rockefeller.

Second, there is the bill sponsored by Rep. Carl Elliott, Dem., of Alabama, which was favorably reported by a majority of the House Committee on Education and Labor. Besides strong requirements for disclosure, the Elliott bill regulates secondary boycotts and other dubious labor practices. It is roughly comparable to the bill that passed the Senate.

Much Further

Third there is the bill sponsored by Reps. Robert P. Griffin, R., Mich., and Phil M. Landrum, Dem., Ga. The Griffin-Landrum bill goes much further than the Elliott bill in its restrictions on secondary boycotts, picketing, and so on. In view of its origin, this might better be called the bill of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers. It has also won President Eisenhower's public endorsement.

Among the labor leaders, James R. Hoffa of the Teamsters and old John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers are opposed to all labor reform legislation, no matter what. Even the Shelley bill would handicap Hoffa. Hoffa's lobbyist, John Scazi, has flatly said that "labor" (meaning Hoffa) "cannot live with" the middle-of-the-road Elliott bill.

Labor Support

The Shelley bill is supported by labor leaders who have acknowledged the need for reform, like George Meany of the AFL-CIO. It is in fact their bill, not Hoffa's, and they are its only backers. Meany and the others like him are actively opposing the Elliott bill, saying it is anti-labor.

As for the Griffin-Landrum bill, it arouses the same labor emotions as the right-to-work issue—did not conspicuously aid the Republicans in the last Congressional elections.

Despite labor's opposition to it, the middle-of-the-road Elliott bill has the support of Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, all the House's moderate Democrats, and the 10 to 15 Republican members who care about the labor vote in their districts. This group in the centre is being badly squeezed, however, between the union-controlled left wing Democrats and right wing members.

The real leader of the fight for the Griffin-Landrum bill is the new House Republican leader, Rep. Charles Halleck of Indiana. In discussing labor legislation, Rep. Halleck has said, repeatedly, that he "wants a killer, or no bill at all."

This is also the approach of the employers' associations. These have been putting on the heat for the Griffin-Landrum bill in a style that can only be compared to the style of Hoffa.

To complete the tangle, the burning issue of civil rights is indirectly but importantly involved.

Civil Rights

The conservative Southern Democratic faction headed by the immensely powerful chairman of the House Rules Committee, Rep. Howard Smith of Virginia, would like to pass stringent labor legislation. Yet many of these southerners would be amenable to Speaker Rayburn's persuasions, if Smith and Halleck did not have an understanding on the civil rights issue.

The existence of the understanding will of course be denied by Halleck, but many a self-righteous roar. But the fact is well known all the same. Halleck has undertaken, in effect, to help Smith block action on civil rights, if Smith helps him with the labor bill and other measures of special interest to the Republicans.

As these words are written, no one can tell whether Halleck's Republicans plus Smith's Southern Democrats can substitute the Griffin-Landrum bill for the middle-of-the-road Elliott bill. The House has never been so bulleted by industry pressures, labor pressures, and White House pressures (for the White House lobbying squad has also been hard at work).

The Shelley bill has no chance, but otherwise the outcome of the House voting is quite unpredictable.

One can predict, however, that if Halleck passes his "killer" bill in the House, no law will reach the statute books. For the Senate conferees will never accept the "killer," whereas they would accept with cheers the bill that Hoffa's own lobbyist says Hoffa cannot live with.

As Our Readers See It

All in Common

With constant discussion of Communism, in editorials and elsewhere, it might be well to clarify our thoughts about it.

Communism is defined as the "theory or system of social organization based upon the holding of all property in common, the actual ownership being ascribed to the community as a whole or to the state."

Communism has nothing to do with religion but, historically, it has been associated with both Christianity and atheism. Christians were originally a communistic sect; they had "all things in common"—Acts 2:44 and 45, also 4:32, 34, 35—and even yet many of the Christian monastic orders operate on a communistic basis. On the other hand, the communism of Russia and its satellites is supported by governments which are atheistic.

While the Russians are communist by compulsion, individuals enter the Christian orders voluntarily. Most of the latter, however, are enlisted so young they are not able to appreciate the full meaning and implications of monastic communism. Once given, their vows may be broken only with grave spiritual consequences; so therein we see a large measure of compulsion also.

There are three characteristics of communism, running counter to the spirit of free men. It discourages initiative, as the individual does not reap the fruits of his own labor; it requires adherence to a body of doctrine or "party line" from which none may dissent; and it enforces implicit obedience to those in charge of the complete organization.

All three features apply equally in Russian communism and in the Christian monastic brand, but the followers of the latter are required to forego marriage, an unnatural restraint not imposed under the Russian system.

So let us not be misled by tirades directed only against "atheistic" communism. Let us remember that both types of communism, Christian as well as atheistic, are incompatible and inconsistent with a free democratic society.

Consumers, Unite!

Many consumers will earnestly endorse the editorial, in your issue of the 10th under the caption "Consumers, Unite."

This movement could be organized under a Better Business Bureau. Other cities have this service and it is time Victoria got busy and brought herself up to date.

We do not believe that persons are wilfully dishonest; but . . . but the desire to practise their capacity for greed, otherwise smart business, would be curbed if the public had some means whereby they could present their grievance.

Action in this matter is imperative. Let's do something about it!

Best Policy

Some time ago I met a friend and asked him how his son was getting on and he informed me that his son was making lots of money and having a good time.

I suggested that his son should go in for politics as he already had plenty of money, but he said that politics was a dirty business and he wouldn't touch it with a large pole.

I pointed out that his son was a Canadian and this was his own country and that if politics was a dirty business surely it was all the more necessary that decent people should go in and help to clean it up.

To this he replied that an honest man could not get into politics, but I disagreed with him and thought an honest man could.

Perhaps the appointment of Mr. H. Lee Briggs to the National Energy Board goes to prove that honesty is still the best policy.

Without a Voice

Judging by the radio reports, it would appear that the recent sales of fish conducted at the Fishermen's Wharf in Victoria by the United Fishermen and Allied Workers' Union were somewhat misrepresented to the public.

While it is true that at least a portion of the funds collected are used to alleviate distress among striking workers and fishermen, what has not been pointed out is that salmon trollers, who would ordinarily provide the bulk of the salmon that the Victoria housewife would buy, never were on strike and did not have a vote in the matter at all.

As stated in the UFAWU bulletin No. 4, of 2,372 fishermen who voted, 1,611 voted to strike. There are, however, over 12,000 fishermen in the industry. Therefore, Victoria housewives, when you cook that chunk of salmon you bought so cheaply at the sale with the mistaken idea that you were helping the fishermen, remember that you did nothing to help the ten thousand fishermen who had no vote in the recent strike.

FROM LONDON

A Spot of Diplomatic Bother

THE Ambassador of Ruritania at the Court of St. James' is even now writing a secret dispatch to his foreign minister about a dastardly plot which he and a number of other Excellencies have nipped in the bud just in time to prevent an unheard-of outrage against the proprieties of diplomatic life.

When the dispatch has been written, coded, telegraphed, and decoded, and has arrived at about 11 o'clock tomorrow morning in the foreign minister's in-tray, he will learn that an attempt has been made to deprive His Excellency the Ambassador of Ruritania, and a number of other ambassadors of like standing, of their time-honored privilege and duty to call formally upon such of their colleagues as are newly arrived at the Court of St. James' and to return such calls with all the pomp and circumstance that the occasion requires.

For some weeks past it has been apparent from a close study of such diplomatic feathers as one comes across in London that some of them have been ruffled by something more than the usual exchange of civilities with the foreign office about smuggling in a diplomatic bag or the knocking down of a jay-walker by a car with a "C.D." plate.

Dark Hints

During cocktail parties in the once-stately homes now occupied by embassies in "Millonaires' Row," Belgrave, and Portland Place, dark hints and meaning glances have been exchanged that have baffled the innocent journalist who thought that diplomatic secrets are more easily come by these days.

But now that the battle is over, those who have emerged victorious—or think they have—seem unable to refrain from sharing their triumph with the wider public.

The story they tell, without any personal animus, it is true, but with some feeling nevertheless, centres on the recent activities of Mr. Gunnar Hagglof, honorary Knight Grand Cross of the Royal Victorian Order, Ambassador of Sweden, and doyen of the Diplomatic Corps in London.

It appears that Mr. Hagglof's reflections about the role and place of diplomacy in the middle of the 20th century have impelled him towards the conclusion that too much effort is being spent by ambassadors, high and low, but particularly high, on the time-consuming duty of visiting their colleagues, particularly low.

Gentle Suggestion

In his capacity of doyen, Mr. Hagglof therefore sent a circular to the 80 or so ambassadors, high commissioners, envoys extraordinary and plenipotentiary, charges d'affaires, and charges d'affaires ad interim (in that order) suggesting in the most gentle manner possible a way of relieving them of their burden.

Some 20 new ambassadors, high commissioners, and the like arrive in London every year.

One of their first duties is to pay formal visits to 60 or so of their brethren in the diplomatic corps, which works out at something like 1,200 visits, each claiming at least an hour and a half of ambassadorial time and motion.

But this is, literally, only half the trouble, for each such visit has to be repaid.

Time has to be found, appointments to be made, "Who's Who" to be studied, and the necessary minimum of gossip about the host and perhaps his idiosyncrasies collected.

And all this at a time when the new ambassadors should be settling down to what, for some of them at least, are exacting and responsible jobs, requiring the making of a host of other than purely ambassadorial contacts and the detailed study of their new assignments.

Some of the newly arrived additions to the Splendor of the Court of St. James' have found the burden well-nigh unbearable and have inquired of Mr. Hagglof, as diplomatically as they know how, about his own views in the matter. Mr. Hagglof, who has reached his position by virtue of his seniority at the Court of St. James', has no power to lay down rules of diplomatic intercourse. But he can make suggestions.

Visiting Cards

The bombshell wrapped up in his circular put to his colleagues the idea that they might not disagree if it were suggested that it should not be considered incorrect if some ambassadors sent their visiting cards instead of returning the calls in person.

The heads of missions who have bigger things than the social round to think of were delighted. But the lesser lights of the London diplomatic firmament felt almost as if a cosmic eruption had taken place. So far as can be learned, the ambassadors of such countries as France and the United States signified their whole-hearted approval of the idea.

But those who have more time to devote to such things and set greater store by them make no secret of their unalterable opposition to the proposal.

They speak, some fearfully, others passionately, of the steady erosion of diplomatic etiquette that has been taking place in London in recent years.

They recall the good old days when a newly arrived naval attaché would be required by protocol to send five or six hundred visiting cards to assorted London diplomatists with the glad tidings of his coming.

Periodic Letters

Then M. Massigli, the post-war French Ambassador in London, and then the doyen of the corps, suggested that this procedure could be simplified by the dispatch of periodic letters listing embassy personnel changes.

At the beginning of this year Mr. Hagglof went to the limit by suggesting that even the letters should be dispensed with, since all such information is readily available in the monthly diplomatic list published by the foreign office.

Some embassies have received this particular suggestion gratefully and have acted on it, but Mr. Hagglof's more recent initiative has had to be abandoned.

So far as can be ascertained, only a minority of heads of missions has rejected his suggestion, but he has now sent another circular withdrawing it in view of the opposition. The Ambassador of the United States will still be in duty bound to call on His Excellency the Ambassador of Ruritania and exchange pleasantries with him.

The Marigolds

"How pretty your flowers are," Ellen said, stroking a petal of one of the French marigolds in the squat brown pottery jug on the luncheon table.

"My sop to Gracious Living," Marion cracked. "But, seriously, I always try to have a few flowers on the table. Often, they're only bits and pieces, but I like to have something small and pretty."

"Your dinner jacket in the wilderness?" asked Ellen.

"Sort of, I suppose. Anyhow, it's to do with self-respect. You know how when you're rushed and rattled and you've had to slap the supper on, you just long for things to be pretty and peaceful and leisured, instead of your husband wolfing down his food because he has a meeting, and the children bolting theirs because they have some kind of practice."

"Home is just a place to sleep and eat?"

"Yes, no matter how you fight against it, you somehow find yourself being forced into the prevailing pattern. Anyway, I hope that, in the years to come, the children will remember that I always tried to have flowers on the table. Probably, they won't remember but it's very queer what does stay with one from childhood."

"French marigolds," said Ellen. "You know they were a part of my childhood, though I hadn't thought of them consciously for years. To me, they mean a very formal well-kept garden in Europe. A straight, sandy path between flowerbeds edged with low growing box. And behind the little trim of box, there were always French marigolds. Always. It never varied from year to year. At the end of the path was a shaggy lawn that we children called the "Plooze."

"I don't remember noticing the marigolds especially. But they're there like that, very firmly in my mind. The scent of marigolds and box together."

"Quite different from my associations," said Marion. "To me, they're a little wooden church in the interior. Marigolds when we children helped Mother decorate the church for Harvest Festival."

"Such a tiny church, but quite big enough for the few families in the district. We each had our own pew. Not marked for us especially. Just habit. But to sit in another family's pew would have been unthinkable. Summer visitors did it once or twice, unknowingly. It was really quite upsetting."

"John and I were married there," Marion continued. "And all of us were christened there. Next time I write to Claire, I must ask her if she remembers the marigolds."

"Isn't it queer?" said Ellen. "The little things that link one to the past. Two middle-aged women and marigolds on the table. And we've both been miles and years away."

Dizziness in the Elderly

Emeritus Consultant in Medicine, Mayo Clinic and Emeritus Professor of Medicine, Mayo Foundation.

I suppose every day two or three letters come in from old people who want to know why they are "dizzy." Many of them are not so much dizzy as that they have lost that comfortable sense of balance which a normal person has. Maybe they stagger a little as they walk, or they fear they are going to fall down, but they don't. These old people very seldom have the so-called dizziness of Meniere's disease.

In that disease, the person will feel as if he were whirling about, or the room may seem to be whirling about him. Sometimes, with the dizziness of older people, there will be a little nausea, or some ear noises. The thing to do is to go to an ear man—one who is honest and won't make work. Usually he will say, after an examination, "Your ears are perfectly normal, and hence you haven't Meniere's disease."

Often, when I can talk to the elderly person who has lost his good sense of balance, all I have to ask is, "Did this thing come suddenly?" and he may say, "Yes; I was crossing the street," or "I was sitting, reading the newspaper," or "I was on a bus, and suddenly it came." Some say they were left feeling so woozy and queer that they were frightened, and thought they were having a stroke or were going to die. These people, I feel sure, are generally right in their diagnosis. They had what I call a "little stroke," such as doesn't interfere with speech, or leave any paralyzed muscles. The sad thing is that sometimes the lack of balance remains for months or even years. I am sorry that I don't know of any medicine that will quickly drive the trouble away. If I had it, I doubt if I'd take any medicine or even go to see a doctor. I would simply grin and bear it; and I know that, often, it is pretty hard to bear.

It is curious that hundreds of us doctors keep telling our patients, "for goodness' sake, never take an enema." For 40 years I have been asking my fellow doctors why they say this, but so far no one has given me a good reason. Most say that they have met neurotic women who were taking two or three enemas a day, and they didn't want their patients to develop "the enema habit."

Seeing that I can interview a thousand women without finding one with "an enema habit," I can't get excited about the danger.

I, personally, have never seen anyone who had been hurt by enemas. I once saw a woman who gave me the evidence I was looking for. She said that for over 10 years she had taken at least two or three enemas a day. What interested me so much was that she brought with her a stack of X-ray films, showing what her colon had looked like every year during the 10 years. On comparing the size of her colon when she started taking enemas with its appearance and size when she came to see me, it was obvious that her bowel had not been stretched at all, as many doctors have feared it might be. Then, when I looked into the woman's bowel with a lighted tube, I saw a perfectly normal mucous lining.

If people will put into a bagful of warm water a rounded tablespoonful of table salt, they will get the equivalent of salty tears. Just as tears don't injure the eyes, so the salty water won't injure the inside of the colon.

Secret Meeting In China

PEIPING (Reuters) — The top leaders of Communist China are believed holding an important secret conference at present with the Khrushchev-Eisenhower visits in the offing and trouble brewing in the Indochina state of Laos.

Observers here have detected signs that the party chiefs have been away from the capital since the end of June. There has been speculation that the politburo or central committee has been in session.

Chinese officials in Peiping were noncommittal when asked if such a meeting was or is being held. They suggested the leaders might be touring the country to see for themselves how industry and agriculture are faring.

In foreign affairs, the coming meetings, with their possible far-reaching effects on the entire international situation, are certain to have been under careful study by the Chinese leaders.

No Chinese spokesman has yet commented publicly on the exchange visits, and the announcement has received an apparently somewhat cautious welcome from the party press.

U.S. Accused by Red China Of Turning Laos Into Base

TOKYO (AP) — The Communists made new charges today that the United States is attempting to convert Laos into a military base threatening Red China and North Viet Nam.

Peiping declared the situation in the Indo-China kingdom, where royal troops have been clashing with Red rebels, "has worsened and become more grave."

While the war of words ground on, Laos' frontier with her Communist neighbors apparently was quiet. Reports from Vientiane, the Laotian capital, said there have been no significant skirmishes in the mountainous jungles of northern Laos in a week or 10 days.

the METAL that
to your pocket!

The pocket radio was made possible by transistors. Transistors use a strange metal that squeaks when you bend it, melts at cake-baking temperature and is so soft you can cut it easily with a knife. An elusive metal, too, Cominco spent many years developing a method of extracting the minute quantities present in each ton of ore.

Today we can make this metal — Tadanac Brand Indium — 99.9999% pure and we are one of the world's largest suppliers.

Indium is a newcomer to the industrial metal field. Already it is finding important applications in, for example, high quality bearings for aircraft, diesel and car engines; fire protection equipment; radio-activity indicators and scientific equipment manufacture. The list is steadily growing and "the Metal That Brings a Band" promises to have an even more exciting future as its unique properties are utilized to the full.

HOME GARDEN

By HILDA BEASTALL

For That New Greenhouse

Every week I hear of another enthusiastic gardener who has built a small greenhouse. And there must be a few dozen others.

These lucky people can have color all winter with a few potted bulbs and annuals dug from the garden by late August.

By the end of winter, the greenhouse might become rather colorless, especially the first year, unless something is done about it now. As a suggestion for a cool greenhouse, one from which frost is excluded, try a small sowing now of mignonette for perfume and schizanthus for color.

Germinate the seed in the greenhouse, and prick out just as soon as the seedlings can be handled. Five seedlings of mignonette to a five-inch pot will make a fine winter bouquet of perfume.

The schizanthus (butterfly-flower) should be pricked out singly into 3-inch pots. A dozen seedlings will give a fine assortment of colors, and if space is limited the less showy ones can be discarded as soon as first flowers open.

Plenty of air will be needed while the sunny weather lasts, and the best position possible for daylight during the winter. There is no need for high temperatures for these plants, the bulbs, or the annuals potted up from the garden in fall. The aim is to keep the plants as stocky as possible, with plentiful root systems which will support large flowering plants.

By early February the schizanthus will be ready to be pinched back half way, and either put into five-inch pots, or three put into an eight-inch pot to give a really handsome specimen.

Both the mignonette and the schizanthus will require twigg support to keep them in place, and this should be supplied early to avoid damage to the fine root systems.

Watering during the dull winter days should be kept to a minimum, for the plants will not be able to utilize moisture, and the soil will be slow to dry. A slightly heated greenhouse can be made a happy retreat on the dullest of days if preparations are made now.

AFFLICTED by deafness, part-blindness and inability to speak, four-year-old Janice Albany shown here with St. John Ambulance Brigade nominee Darlene Mills, 16, is one of four candidates entered so far in Community Chest "Miss Red Feather" contest to mark $325,000 September drive. ENTERS CONTEST
Impish Charm
This Tot's
Prime Asset

By DAVID COWLISSAW

A pretty girl will mount a platform in downtown Victoria one day next month and compete in a contest to find "Miss Red Feather, 1959."

But, unlike the girls standing beside her, Janice Albany will have only impish charm on which to build her chances.

Aged 4½ years, Janice is completely deaf, partly blind and so far unable to speak.

More, she does not know where her parents are.

Part Indian, little Janice described by Chest agency Family and Children's Service nurse, Mrs. Phyllis Roberts, as "the happiest child I know" has lived with foster-parents since she was a year old.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Richard Albany, 1215 Craigflower. "They have been wonderful," Mrs. Roberts said. "The Albany's have never treated her other than as if she were their own. Mrs. Albany even instructs her in mail-order speech therapy lessons."

MORE HOMES NEEDED

The Albany's, who have two sons of their own, Donnie, nine, and Mark, six, get $30 a month for looking after Janice.

That's one dollar a day. The service had found homes for 275 such parentless children in July. They need many homes more.

"Not all our foster children are like Janice," Mrs. Roberts said. "Most are completely normal in every way. But Janice is different. She likes to watch television, but cannot hear it."

"She makes sounds instead of talking. She has been cross-eyed since she was two. She has to point to things and pick them up to make herself understood. But she's happy. She goes to kindergarten in September."

The Family and Children's Service, one of the 22 agencies in the Community Chest, entered Janice in the "Miss Red Feather" contest "to call attention to some of the children we have to deal with, and the need for more foster parents."

But some people may not need a "Miss Red Feather" contest to coax them to come forward. If they would like to take in an orphan or otherwise parentless child, they are asked to call Mrs. Bernice Packford at EV 2-5121.

Janice, and the thousands like her, will be grateful.

The B.C. department of recreation and conversation does.

Despite reports from some interior areas that rattlers appear to be out in increased numbers this year, there are no plans to place a bounty on their hides.

There have been no reports of anyone being bitten recently, but in the provincial hot belts, the Okanagan and Kamloops areas, snake sightings have put a damper on some outdoor activities.

A conservation department official, explained today, "rattlers are part of mother nature's scheme of things... the balance of nature they eat the mice which ruin the orchards and hurt the farmer. We have no desire to clean them out—any more than coyotes or bears."

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Teamsters' president James R. Hoffa will meet with more than 100 of his union's attorneys in secret session Monday at a plush resort hotel in West Virginia.

Hoffa is scheduled to make the opening address—behind closed doors—at the annual conference of attorneys who represent locals or city-wide councils of his 1,500,000-member union.

The teamsters' top legal talent will be gathered to consider possible ways to blunt the impact of labor reform legislation on the scandal-stricken union.

"At Last! A car I can handle and park — and it's automatic"

"A real quality car — and it gives up to 32 m.p.g. on regular gas"

THE LOWEST PRICED AUTOMATIC DRIVE CAR IN CANADA IS THE 6-PASSENGER VANGUARD ENSIGN

Just check off the unique advantages of the Vanguard Ensign. Gives you Borg-Warner Automatic Transmission. Seats six adults with plenty of leg room. Powered by a lively sports type engine that makes driving fun. Has the ease of handling that makes a woman driver feel right at home. Costs as little to run as many small cars. Looks like a million—yet actually costs less to buy than any other car with automatic transmission. Also available with conventional Canadian three speed transmission. Logic says the Vanguard Ensign is your car. See it at our showrooms, and let your heart decide.

Steel Issues Major Losers At Toronto

By RAL MALONE
Times Business Editor

Victoria needs an industrial commissioner. Not tomorrow, next week, next month, next year. But right now.

A land developer walked into the office of a Greater Victoria municipal planning director recently. The developer outlined his proposal for a commercial development.

To make it work, he told the planner, he had to have answers to some pertinent questions.

"How many children attend school in this area?" he asked.

"I don't know," said the planner.

"What is the average income of the residents?"

"I don't know."

"How many pre-school children live here? What is the breakdown, boys and girls?"

"I don't know."

"What is the traffic count through here?"

"On and on went the questions. On and on flowed the words. 'I don't know.'"

Finally, the developer folded up his plans and stole away.

He was bound for Surrey, a fast-growing municipality on the south banks of the Fraser where they have answers.

Surrey has answers and Greater-Victoria doesn't?

Oil Companies Cartel Breaks Up

Steel Firms Veto Price Cut Move

Congressman Suggests Reduction In Lieu of Granting Wage Boost

WASHINGTON (AP) — The steel industry, it was reliably reported today, has rejected a suggestion that it cut steel prices $10 a ton in lieu of granting a wage increase in the current strike situation.

The suggestion was made by Democratic Representative Chester A. Bowles of Connecticut in a letter to President Eisenhower, who in turn had referred directly to Chairman Roger Blough of U.S. Steel Corporation.

Blough is said to have turned down the idea on the ground that in settling the strike, which began a month ago, the steel companies are going to have to give the strikers some sort of wage increase anyway.

OPPOSING VIEWS

So far the industry's position is that it cannot, in the public interest, increase steel labor costs and thus spur inflation. The striking United Steelworkers Union contends this is an attempt to reverse traditional economic policy that workers are entitled to regular sharing in profits.

Bowles told a reporter today he felt his price-cut proposal has merit. He said if the industry went along he felt sure the Steelworkers Union would have to abandon its wage demands in the public interest. Bowles was the government's wartime price administrator.

"The effect of a steel price cut would help the entire economy," Bowles said. "It would probably mean that prices of new 1956 automobiles would have to be lower, too."

With steel negotiations continuing in a complete stalemate in New York, these other facets of the situation became known:

1. The administration has no intention of invoking the Taft-Hartley labor law's national-emergency provisions at least until Sept. 15 or about Oct. 1. Officials are convinced there will be no sizeable steel shortage until then.

2. The union is convinced that with no settlement likely the government will have to intervene. It says use of the Taft-Hartley law would settle nothing, only delay a showdown for an 80-day period. Instead, it wants Eisenhower to appoint a public board to recommend settlement terms.

Hungarian Refugees Won't Harass Mr. K.

NEW YORK (AP) — The Hungarian Freedom Fighters Federation says it will refrain from any violence and demonstration during Nikita Khrushchev's visit to the United States. The federation said President Eisenhower's "sincere peace efforts" prompted it to refrain from doing anything that might cause retaliation when Eisenhower visits Russia.

3 HOODED MEN FOUND IN COMPARTMENT

Train Robbery Foiled By Brakeman

MONTREAL (CP)—Armed robbery of a railway train carrying a large shipment of money was foiled Wednesday night by discovery of three hooded bandits in a darkened smoking compartment.

A brakeman checking through the cars of Canadian National Railways' Scotian some time before its departure for Halifax surprised the trio. The hooded men, armed with 32 revolvers, fled through the CNR's station yard area firing at pursuing railway employees. Montreal detectives said the train which later left for the Maritimes on schedule carried a large shipment of currency in transit from Ottawa to the Royal Bank of Canada at Halifax.

The Scotian was on track No. 10 in readiness for departure when brakeman Armand

Vachon poked his head into the smoking compartment of a sleeping car and spotted the bandits, hoods over their heads.

The hooded men leaped to their feet and ran from the sleeper with Vachon in pursuit, hollering: "Thief." The fugitives first headed north through the station's dim track-level area beneath the concourse where passengers assemble.

First they headed for a tunnel through which trains roll under Mount Royal. The bandits eventually took possession of a panel truck parked in St. Antoine Street and roared away eastward.

MARKET MEETS DOOM FRIDAY

City council will hold a special meeting Friday night to give final reading to a bylaw authorizing demolition of the public market building.

Meanwhile, Margaret Peterson today said her Society for the Preservation of the Public Market will seek legal advice on whether it can try for an injunction to block the demolition.

She told a public meeting attended by seven persons Tuesday night that the battle to stop the demolition would be continued.

Civic Group Aims for Pension Hike

A newly-formed organization is attempting to raise pensions of Greater Victoria retired civic employees who are getting as little as $5 a month now.

J. D. Riddell, secretary-treasurer of the 200-member B.C. Municipal Retired Employees Association of Greater Victoria, said today "about 80 per cent of the approximately 400 retired civic employees here are receiving $50 or less a month."

Letters have gone out to the four municipal councils, Greater Victoria school board, water board and library board asking for "an expression of their views" on the situation, he said.

He said that increases in the new provincial superannuation regulations for civic employees made last year added between $1,000 and $1,500 to the annual benefits that will be received by municipal workers retiring after April 1, 1958.

"But there was no increase for the people who retired 20 or more years ago and are getting as little as $5, $21, $35 and $50 a month," he said.

"We are trying to get more money for these people. It is ridiculous to expect them to live on such small pensions," Mr. Riddell said.

He added that "only our former employers and not the government" can make increases to the old pensions.

Mr. Riddell pointed out that the federal government has increased pre-inflation pension benefits for civil servants by 33 per cent. Vancouver and North Vancouver also have given $20 bonuses to civic pensioners who were receiving less than $100 a month.

DON'TS on a Boat Cruise

Between now and the end of the fine weather boat season a good many skippers will invite a good many friends and their families for cruises.

And a good many will vow "never again."

For some reason, many guests find it impossible to comport themselves properly in a boat, perhaps because they feel that to ask questions is to reveal they are land-lubbers.

The good host will let his guests know that they need only ask if in doubt about do's and don'ts. Often what they think is a fool question really is not, and their ignorance is no measure of their intelligence.

For the benefit of those who are going to ask friends on a cruise, and those who are going to be asked, here are a few rules for passengers in small boats.

Do not jump into the boat from the dock.

Do not step on the gunwales when boarding. Step as nearly to amidships (centre) as possible, and keep low until you are seated.

Do not wear high-heeled shoes or shoes with hard soles. They are murder on varnished decks!

Do not perch on the gunwales, seat back, or decks. Sit in the seat you are directed to by your host.

Do not kick the lifejacket given you into the bilge, or use it as a foot rest. If your host, the skipper, asks you to wear it, put it on.

Do not stand up in the boat when it is underway.

Do not change seats without asking the driver's permission.

Do not tell the skipper you want to go faster, or direct his control of the craft in any way, or argue with his judgement.

Do not use the oars or paddles until asked to do so.

Do not throw bottles, cans or other refuse overboard.

Do not rock the boat, or engage in horseplay.

Do not stare into other boat's cabins, or at boating parties you pass.

Don't be afraid of riding in a boat, but respect it. Relax and enjoy yourself — a boat won't tip over unless someone tips it.

(Next week this will have a column of suggestions for skippers when entertaining guests aboard his boat.)

ask Andy
HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question, answered each day receives a 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia (Canadian edition) and the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Address your questions to "Ask Andy," Victoria Daily Times.

Andy sends a complete, 15-volume set of Compton's Pictured Encyclopedia to Barry Smith, aged 10, of Los Angeles, Calif., for his question:

Do Bats Belong to the Bird Family?

Bats come out of their hiding places in the evening when the light is dim. Seeing them this way, it is easy to mistake them for a flock of flying birds. We tend to think that birds are the only animals that can fly. This is true—with one exception. Bats are not birds nor are they related to birds but they can fly better than most birds.

Close up or in the bright light of day, you can see several of the important differences between bats and birds. Birds have feathers and bats have coats of downy fur. Birds have beaks and bats have mouths with teeth. Birds have no outer ears and bats have large outer ears. But the greatest difference between the birds and the bats is in their family life. Birds lay eggs and bats bring forth live babies.

Seen close up, a bat looks more like a mouse, a winged mouse, than he looks like a bird. And, like the mouse, he is a mammal. He is rated in the highest group in the animal kingdom, along with the lion and the elephant, the pig and the monkey, the dog and the squirrel.

In all the world there are about 2,000 different kinds of bats. They live everywhere except in the extremely cold climates. The biggest bats live in the tropics and may have wing spreads five feet wide. Most of the tropical bats feed on fruit. Most of the smaller bats who live in temperate climates feed on insects.

The little brown bat is the most common bat in North America. He is a little more than three inches long and he tips the scale at half an ounce. He makes his home in caves, barns and hollow trees and home is where he sleeps away the day. His most comfortable position is hanging upside down by his feet.

Feasts Daily on Insects

When evening comes he flies forth with many of his friends and relatives. Together they swoop through the dusk swallowing insects. Each little bat can eat half his weight in insects during an evening. This means that bats are our friends.

Hundreds of bats can mill around in a crowded cave without ever having a collision. This is because each bat has his own built-in radar system. He constantly sends out squeaks higher than the range of sound our ears can hear. The sounds bounce off solid objects in echoes and return to the bat's sensitive ears. He knows when there is a snag in his path and turns away in a split second.

The little brown bat is always an only child. The tiny fellow is born naked and helpless. Mama hides with him in a dark cave or hollow tree. When she goes out to dine at dusk, he hangs upside down to wait. When he is three weeks old, he has a fur coat and is strong enough to go out flying with his mother.

Andy sends a Hammond's Ambassador World Atlas to David Thomas, age 12, of Peoria, Ill., for his question: Why isn't the longest day the hottest day?

The longest day in the year is June 22, which is the summer solstice. Up until this date, the days get longer, after it they get shorter until we come to Dec. 21, which is the shortest day of the year. On the basis of these facts, we would expect June 22 to be right in the hottest part of the summer. Actually we know that on this date, summer is just getting under way.

The reason for this is because the earth gets hotter as it stores up sunshine. By late June, we have had only a few long summer days. The earth has not been able to store up much heat. But the long summer days last through July and August. The days are longer than the nights and at night the earth is able to save some of the heat from one day to the next. This goes on right into September.

Summer comes when the days are longer and the sun is higher overhead. But it takes the old earth a while to store up all the heat and sunshine and give us scorching summer weather.

MARILYN MONROE ... 20 minutes late
MARLENE DIETRICH ... for Copacabana?

IT HAPPENED LAST NIGHT

By EARL WILSON

NEW YORK — 'Twas my Beautiful Wife's never-mind-which birthday ... and I had warned Marilyn Monroe's press representative, "I won't wait on her today if she's late ... I'll walk out."

So I fidgeted and squirmed ... and suddenly there was Marilyn, and I was gasping. "But you're only 15 minutes late!"

"Twenty!" shrieked Marilyn, trotting in to look at a clock. "It's very gallant of you to say 15."

"How did you ever make it?" I asked.

"I decided it was either my hair, or being on time for you and your wife," said Marilyn. "I finally decided that Rosemary was more important than my hair being right."

Thus she established a record for punctuality—for her.

Marilyn visited the Four Seasons Restaurant, then "Two for the Seesaw," then back to the Four Seasons again. Thanks to her co-operation, we managed to pull a complete surprise, meanwhile, on our BW down at Luchow's, which is fine for surprises because that band music is often so booming you could shoot somebody down there and never be noticed. Jan Mitchell, the boss, denies the contention that somebody who liked to hear himself eat soup once gave the head waiter $100 not to have the orchestra play for him ...

All we really noticed was that Marilyn was practically on time. How she does this virtually impossible thing, we will have to tell you later. It just shows you, there is a new Miss Monroe—as you'll be seeing.

Today's Bringdowns: I was just invited to be guest of honor at a big national assemblage at Britt, Iowa, Aug. 18—the Hoboes' Convention.

The first result of the peace pact reached by Rita Hayworth and Aly Khan here last week will be seen this weekend when Princess Yasmin arrives from Hollywood on the way to visit Papa Aly in Europe.

Armed Bandits Rob Farmer of $10,000

ST. POACHIM, Ont. (CP)—Three men, all armed and wearing stocking masks, forced a 72-year-old retired farmer to open his safe Wednesday night and made off with $10,000 in bonds and nearly $600 in cash. Emil Vermette, living alone on the outskirts of this community 25 miles east of Windsor, told police the men tied him up and got away in what might have been a pickup truck.

Canada has more miles of railroad per capita than any other country and a total mileage of more than 58,000.

CRIBBED CORN: "What sort of a place are you living in now, Ben?" "Why, man, if anyone pays the rent three weeks running the 'coppers' call round to see where they got it from." — Humor (Australia).

WISH I'D SAID THAT: Marguerite Piazza defines fashion as that thing that goes in one year and out the other.

TODAY'S BEST LAUGH: Stanley Dombroff thinks they call Brigitte Bardot's bathing suit a "bikini" because it doesn't cover her atoll. That's earl, brother.

MONTANA COACH CONFIDENT

Ray Isn't Worrying About Late Start

By IAN SMITH
Ray Whipskey stood in the shadows of Royal Athletic Park on Wednesday and, in a slow Montana drawl, opined that "we're gonna beat 'em all."

Then the coach looked over his team of eager Babe Ruth baseball players from Glendive, Mont., and nodded his head for emphasis.

You could see that the boys were confident they could back up Whipskey's confidence and win the eight-team regional tournament, which starts in Athletic Park at 7 tonight.

These Glendive lads won't be playing tonight, but they'll be in the stands watching New Westminster and The Dalles, Ore., mix it up.

In fact, Montana won't get started in this knockout tournament until Saturday at 1.30. And then they will have to win three games within 24 hours if they are to cop the regional crown and advance to the world series.

In their first game they will tangle with Wallace, Idaho, and then, providing they win, they will play another game at 7 that night. If they win that one as well, they will be in the final at 2 p.m. Sunday.

Other first-round games will be played Friday. In the first one at 6.30 p.m., Seattle King County, Wash., will meet Casper, Wyoming. Victorians will play Ketchikan, Alaska, at 8.30.

In a tournament in which all teams must be rated as threats, Montana may be the most powerful of all. Starting pitcher Larry Gary, who says modestly, "I don't think I've lost a game in a couple of years," comes into the tourney with a 22-0 record for the year.

His catcher is Bob Farrell, who is slated to pitch the second game. Whipskey doesn't remember offhand, but he reckons Farrell has about a 12-3 mark.

When the coach said his pitching is "tight," it seemed like an understatement.

But just so the opposing pitchers won't feel too secure, Whipskey has brought along three batters who are knocking the ball at a .330 clip or better—Lane Freibouth, 350; Gary Ensign, 400, and Darwin Strobel, the king of them all, with a .450 average.

Playing three games in 24 hours "doesn't" particularly bother me," he says. "The boys can take it."

He would like to meet Victoria in this tournament. Whipskey was coach when Victoria and Glendive clashed in the Babe Ruth regionals two years ago and Victoria upset Whipskey's crew, 7-3. He doesn't figure it will happen again.

Tickets for tonight's game are available at the park. Daily passes cost 50 cents and a tournament pass costs $1.

Little Nellie Fox loves that chewing tobacco, but just for a change he wants to sink his teeth into a sweet chunk of world series melon.

And now after 12 seasons of catching the world series on radio or TV, Fox looks like he's going to get into his first one with the pennant-bound Chicago White Sox.

Along with a crack at a world series ring, the five-foot-nine, 155-pound second baseman also has an excellent chance to wind up the American League's most valuable player of the year. His performance in an 11-6 victory over Detroit Wednesday was typical.

They'll Decide An Opponent For Duncan

PORTLAND (AP)—Oregon and Washington Little League baseball champions will play here Friday to determine which team will meet British Columbia's champions Saturday.

The winner of the Saturday game will go to the sectional tournament at Sacramento, Calif.

All teams are expected here Thursday and will take part in an outdoor barbecue at Alpenrose Park, adjacent to the stadium where games will be played.

Oregon's entrant is from the Northeast Portland League and Washington's is from Alcoa League, of Vancouver, Wash.

Duncan, the B.C. champion, will play the winner at 3 p.m. Saturday, in the single-elimination event.

Only Faint Hope Left for Eagles

Pages don't know yet whether they are Senior Amateur Baseball League champions, but they certainly went a long way towards achieving that goal at Royal Athletic Park Wednesday.

With Pages 1 1/2 games ahead of their closest opposition, league officials are scheduled to meet tonight to decide whether to cut the schedule off now or finish it off next week.

Pages established themselves as heavy favorites to win the pennant by beating back Eagles, 6-2, on Wednesday. Second-place Eagles have only two games left, excluding postponements, but are 1 1/2 games behind the leaders.

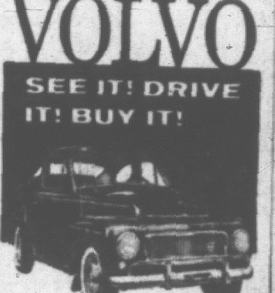

One big inning did the damage.

age, as Pages put together a walk, two errors and five hits in the second to overcome a 1-0 deficit with five big runs. They coasted home from there.

Winning pitcher was Berlyn Hodges, who struck out 11 and was touched for only four hits. Art Worth, of the losers' mound, was tagged 13 times.

City Shot Takes Top Cadet Shield

CONNAUGHT RANGES, Ont. (CP)—Quebec rifleman are outshooting the best of the rest of the country at the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association matches.

They have taken first place in five of the six big individual matches fired here since Monday noon and lost out in a tie-breaking shoot off for the other.

Roy Towler, 40, of Port Alfred, Que., a lieutenant in the Saguenay Regiment, won the province's fifth match, the tough Alexander of Tunis, fired at 900 yards Wednesday.

Earlier Jack J. Pearson, 33, of Montreal, missed the bull's eye only once in 15 consecutive shots to win the MacDonald match, fired at 300 and 600 yards with 124 points of a possible 125. Runner-up was W. J. (Bill) Brown of Virden, Man., with 123.

VICTORIAN WINS

Two cadets from British Columbia split first and second places in two aggregate awards announced Wednesday.

Cadet WO2 Pat Barclay, 17, of Victoria, won the Viscount Wakefield aggregate as top cadet scorer in the tyro, Connaught and Macdougall. Barclay, shooting instructor of the Princess Patricia Light Infantry Cadet Corps, shot 218 of a possible 225.

MAC VETOES PLEBISCITE

MACMILLAN
... controversial

GLASGOW (Reuters) — Prime Minister Macmillan Wednesday rejected a request by Scottish nationalists for a plebiscite on self-government for Scotland.

In a letter to the Scottish Nationalist Party, Macmillan said: "Such a plebiscite could not be held without legislation which would no doubt be controversial."

Macmillan, himself descended from a long line of Scots, said it would be setting a dangerous precedent to hold a referendum on a particular issue of national policy.

New Loan Act Will Create More Farms

New federal farm credit legislation will give young Vancouver Island farmers and people about to become engaged in farming a big helping hand in establishing them on the land.

That's the general reaction of veteran Saanich farmers who learned this week details of the Farm Credit Act approved by parliament last month.

The act provides for a supervised credit program for farmers, replacing the old Farm Loan Act which was the chief source of farm credit.

W. W. Michell, president of the South Vancouver Island Farmers Institute, said the act will give young farmers a start in life.

"It's an expensive business to start a farm from scratch these days," he said. "The new act will provide new farmers with necessary financial assistance to equip their farms."

The act provides loans at 5 per cent interest.

Loans may be made for up to 75 per cent of the appraised value of farm lands, which is 10 per cent greater than provisions under the former Farm Loan Act. The maximum loan shall be $20,000, and the maximum repayment period shall be 30 years.

The new act will be administered by Veterans Land Act. George Chatterton, director of VLA here said the new legislation will do much to assist farmers to expand their holdings and to buy necessary equipment.

"Loans in the past have been inadequate," he said. "Many young farmers were unable to make farming pay because they did not have enough money to enlarge their farms so as to increase production."

The act, he said, would permit many young farmers to establish their farms on a sound economic basis.

He said his staff was now being geared to deal with a steady flow of loan applications from Vancouver Island farmers.

The main sections of the new Act are as follows:

1. Loans may be made on the combined security of land, buildings, livestock and equipment, up to 75 per cent of the total appraised value, or to a maximum of $27,500.

2. Applicants over the age of 45 years will be excluded from the loan.

3. Repayment of the portion of the loan based on the security of chattles must be completed within the first ten years. But the portion based on the security of the land, may be spread over the full 30-year period.

4. Veterans Land Act must enter an agreement with the borrower, which specifies that he will follow an agreed plan of farming operations, permit supervision and inspection, and file annual net report of expenses and revenues.

The borrower will be freed from the supervision and inspection requirements when the principal amount of the loan is reduced to 65 per cent.

5. The applicant must satisfy VLA that he operates an enterprise that is an economic unit. He must submit a plan of his proposed farm development operations with his loan application.

BING, PHIL LATCH ON

'FUNNY' ANGLERS DOING WELL

Two well-known fishermen, Bing Crosby and Phil Harris, have been taking big fish from salmon waters in the Rivers Inlet area.

Guests aboard the Campana, private yacht of Calgary publisher Max Bell, both have worthwhile catches to their credit.

Crosby reported his famous companion Wednesday had hooked—and landed successfully—a 37-pound salmon on a fly rod and 10-pound steel line.

"It was an exciting morning," he said. "It takes a real fisherman to turn in a performance like that."

Only holder of lifetime B.C. hunter's and angler's licences in return for his boosting the centennial celebration last year, Crosby landed a 48-pounder on the trip.

He enquired of fellow comedian Bob Hope, now having a rest and holiday at Qualicum Beach, and who might take a boat trip to join Crosby and Harris.

The Campana at present is near Namu, small fishing community 20 miles north of Cape Scott, northern tip of Vancouver Island.

Mayor to Attend IWA Strike Talk

COURTENAY — Mayor W. C. Moore planned to be in Vancouver today for a conference with International Woodworkers of America officials aimed at ending the six-week woodworkers strike on Vancouver Island and the lower mainland.

Air Force Wins Race With Stork

VANCOUVER (CP) — The RCAF won a race with the stork Wednesday.

An air force Canso was dispatched from Sea Island here to the RCAF station at Holberg, on northern Vancouver Island, where an expectant mother developed complications.

Mrs. William Clark, wife of Cpl. Clark, based at Holberg, arrived here in the Canso at 1.15 p.m.

One hour and six minutes later, she gave birth to a nine-pound, four-ounce baby girl.

Both are "doing fine," authorities at Vancouver General Hospital said.

Heinekey Elected By Acclamation

GANGES — George Heinekey, acting chairman of the board of trustees of Salt Spring School District 64, was elected by acclamation as chairman at a regular meeting of the board.

Following a recommendation made at a ratepayers' meeting in July, trustees voted to combine North Salt Spring and the Ganges district into one attendance area represented by four trustees.

At the annual meeting in the fall electors will consider forming the whole of Salt Spring Island into one attendance area with five trustees elected by general vote.

2 Fire Calls Halt Canvass for Widow

LANGFORD — A porchlight canvass Wednesday night by Langford firemen in aid of the widow of former fireman Edward Fisher was suspended when two fire calls kept the department busy until after midnight.

Arson is suspected in the fires, at the base of Little Mill Mountain between Thetis Lake and Langford.

Firemen will cancel their weekly practice tonight to finish the canvass.

They are selling tickets to a street dance to be held in front of the fire hall. Proceeds will be used to help pay off the $4,600 mortgage on the Fisher home, on Knotty Pine Road.

Collections made Wednesday night have not yet been counted, but it is believed they came close to $1,000.

First of the fire calls came at 8.30 p.m. Firemen had just finished quelling the blaze and were ready to return to the fire hall when the second fire broke out farther up the hill.

No special help is hired by the Langford group in the case of the forest fires, but much assistance has been received from the B.C. forestry suppression crew.

Nanaimo Fall Court Hears Murder Charge

NANAIMO — Murder, manslaughter, and car theft trials are on the calendar of the Fall Assize Court sitting to open here Sept. 8.

Charged with murder in the alleged abortion death of Mrs. Joan Venn, 22, in Port Alberni June 27, are Mrs. Bessie Lillian Trapp, 39, and Mrs. Rachel "Scotty" Silvester, 34. They will be defended by Ronald F. McIsaac of Nanaimo.

George Matthew Callow will stand trial on a charge of manslaughter arising out of the death of his two-year-old daughter, Georgina, at Campbell River in March.

Gilbert Paul Elsie of Chemainus will be tried on a charge of auto theft. The offence is alleged to have occurred July 18.

LAUGHING NOW

These members of the Glendive, Mont. Babe Ruth League All-Stars were gagging it up when they arrived in Victoria Wednesday for the regional tournament at Royal Athletic Park, but they will be all seriousness Saturday when they play first game against Idaho. Taking a hefty practice swing

Jail for Giving Beer to Indian

(From Duncan Bureau) William George McFadden, Duncan, has begun a jail sentence of 30 days after pleading guilty before Magistrate A. C. Sutton in Duncan police court Wednesday to a charge of supplying liquor to Indians.

McFadden had been arrested after he had placed a case of beer behind a fence around the old agricultural grounds and signalled an Indian.

"Well your honor, I guess I'm guilty of doing a man a favor," McFadden said.

RCMP Constable acting for the crown told the court: "It is men of this man's calibre who get Indians into trouble by supplying them with liquor after the beer parlors have cut them off."

The accused was fined $50 and $6.50 court costs or 30 days.

Kelly Scores 'Hand-Out'

NANAIMO (CP) — History of the Indian affairs department has been based on a "hand-out" policy, Dr. Peter Kelly, Haida Indian chief and United Church minister, said Tuesday.

Speaking to a service club, Dr. Kelly said he was in Ottawa last month to present a brief to a joint Commons-Senate committee on Indian affairs.

He said most B.C. Indians wanted a federal vote on the same basis as they have a provincial vote.

BIG BARBECUE TO HELP PAY FOR NEW ROOF

FULFORD — A barbecue 20 feet long and six feet wide will be prepared here to cook chicken for a feast and dance at Fulford Community Hall.

Proceeds will be used to pay for re-roofing of the building. There will be bingo and dancing, and a special late ferry from Vesuvius Bay to accommodate off-island visitors.

Vandals Damage Water Supply

(From Duncan Bureau) CHEMAINUS — RCMP are investigating a case of destructive vandalism at the Miller Creek dam, this community's source of water.

Vandals sawed through two locks, removed several heavy metal screens that filter the water supply, and tossed them into the middle of the reservoir. They also smashed a boom chain that held a row of logs across the pond to prevent debris from pounding against the dam.

Members of Chemainus Volunteer Fire Department skin diving team recovered the metal screens, four of which were badly damaged.

GAGLARDI UNAVAILABLE

Fired Truck Driver Still Out of Work

DUNCAN — Ray Smith, construction company truck driver who claimed he was fired for taking his car over the unfinished Alberni-Tofino Road last month, has not yet managed to ask Highways Minister Gagliardi for help in being reinstated.

He claims that because of publicity given his exploit, the highways department and logging companies put pressure on his employer to have him discharged.

He had to cancel his proposal to call on the minister Monday. Instead, Smith was in hospital undergoing treatment for having swallowed a piece of glass by accident. When he came to Victoria Wednesday, he found the minister was in Vancouver.

His home is at Cowichan Station.

STRANDED BULLDOZER SAVED FROM DROWNING

GANGES — Bulldozer operator Skippy Hall had to send for help here when his ponderous machine became stuck while working on a launching ramp site for Ganges Boat Yard, and the tide started to rise.

One of his crew drove five miles to a shale plant development, where Wayne Bradley loaded his tractor on a flat-deck truck for a rush trip to Ganges. He pulled the helpless bulldozer to safety as the tide reached the danger mark.

HOW YOUR LIVER BILE BREAKS DOWN FAT

Laboratory tests have now proved that liver bile emulsifies fat... actually breaks it down. It is an established medical fact that when liver bile is added to fatty solids, the fat is broken down and forms a smooth, easy-flowing mix.

In your body, previous liver bile helps break down fat the same way. Many foods reach the digestive tract as undigested fatty solids. Your golden liver bile helps break down this fat... unlocks it... for easier and more complete digestion.

Cartier's Little Liver Pills exclusive formula of natural, vegetable ingredients relieves irregularity gently and effectively. At the same time, it actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat in your body.

So when you feel sluggish, headachy, nervous and need a laxative, get Cartier's Little Liver Pills. Remember, Cartier's not only relieves irregularity, but actually improves the flow of liver bile needed to break down fat.

CELEBRATION

India's Day Will Open With Prayer

LAKE COWICHAN —

Prayers will open the observance at Mesachie Lake Sunday by Vancouver Island Sikhs of the celebration of India's Independence Day.

There will be worship at the Sikh Temple from 7 to 9.30 a.m., and 11 a.m. a program of sports, weight lifting, volleyball, and soccer will get under way. At 3 p.m. there will be singing, lectures, and poetry reading.

Charn Singh Sangha, secretary of Hillcrest Khalsa Diwan Society, which will sponsor the celebration, said free meals of East Indian food will be served during the day. About 500 Sikhs are expected to attend.

The 5,600-person community of Lake Cowichan sent a delegate to the mental health hearing here Wednesday to show what can be done when there is no professional treatment available for "disturbed" persons.

Mrs. Dorothy Clode, of Lake Cowichan PTA, said it is impossible to get a psychiatrist to travel 57 miles to that community and difficult to transport a patient.

When anti-social behavior is manifested due to emotional disturbance, the patient ended up in jail (six last year), eventually might reach Essondale, and after treatment be returned to the same environment which caused the breakdown.

Until there is professional psychiatric treatment available, the community has established a family counselling group including a teacher, a physician, three clergymen, the public health nurse, a registered nurse and an RCMP officer.

Only when invited by the family concerned, the group undertakes preventive and restorative measures in regard to assisting with mental health care. In a community of seasonal employment and "heavy drinking," the group feels its friendly assistance can be an important measure, until a treatment centre is established.

SECOND MAJOR THEFT OF 'KING TUT' JEWEL

CAIRO (UPI) — A second major theft of the priceless possessions of King Tutankhamen was reported today by the Cairo museum. This time a jeweled collar that adorned one of "King Tut's" horses was stolen.

The new theft came to light 24 hours after announcement of the theft of a gold-plated scepter belonging to the 18th century B.C. Egyptian Pharaoh.

The necklace, worn by a horse which pulled the Pharaoh's chariot, was made of gold and silver alloy and contained three rows of precious stones.

WORLD-WIDE PROBLEM

Forest Researcher Urges Co-Operation

A world authority on forest research today urged greater international co-operation in dealing with forest problems.

Dr. H. van Vloten, director of Holland's Forest Research Institute, said many present-day forest problems, such as diseases, would be solved quicker if there was more co-operation and exchange of information between scientists of the world.

On his way to attend the international botanical congress in Montreal, Dr. Van Vloten is a guest of Dr. R. E. Foster, officer in charge of forest pathology, federal department of agriculture.

Dr. van Vloten said more nations should encourage their forest research officers to join the International Union of Forest Research Organization which is devoted to improving commercial tree growth.

He said politics seemed to be the main stumbling block to greater international co-operation on scientific matters.

"It is true that in the past 10 years we have been making progress in the sphere of international co-operation and much information is being exchanged between scientists of different countries," he said. "But there is room for improvement."

The scientist praised Canada's contribution towards the development of forest research.

"You have many outstanding CLC to Hear Mine Union Bid Aug. 25"

IN CIGARET PACKAGE

$100 'Payoff' To Get Permit

TORONTO (CP) — Five rolled $20 bills changed hands "in the general way of a payoff" to expedite a building permit, the inquiry into York Township affairs was told Wednesday.

Harold Payne, a suburban Scarborough contractor, told the hearing he gave the money to Councillor Harold Linden in a cigarette package when they met one day in 1956 on the main staircase of the municipal office building.

Questioned by Commission Counsel T. Kelson Creighton, Mr. Payne said he handed over the $100 with the remark: "Here is my contribution to the benevolent fund."

Mr. Payne said he had been hired by township businessman Neel J. May to construct a plant and he feared Mr. May would not get the building permit.

He said he was willing to spend the $100 getting the permit because he could always get the money back by adding a few extras to his bill.

Called to the stand later, Mr. Linden denied the allegation in a few short words: "It's an absolute lie... that meeting never took place... Mr. Payne never paid me any money at any time."

Elderly Patients Tortured In Nursing Home Jury Finds

CHILD SHOT FOR USING REST ROOM

MONTICELLO, Fla. (AP) — Mrs. Louise Walker has been charged with aggravated assault in the wounding of a nine-year-old Negro girl who tried to use a restroom at Mrs. Walker's truck stop. Mrs. Walker said Wednesday at a hearing that the gun fired accidentally and she was released on $250 bond. Several birdshot pellets pierced the child's legs.

Uruguay Paralyzed By Utility Walkout

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (AP) — Uruguay was virtually paralyzed Wednesday by a surprise 24-hour strike of power and telephone workers. About 12,000 workers demand wage increases of about 70 per cent and other benefits. Montevideo's downtown shopping and financial centres were almost deserted. No newspapers published, radio stations were silent and factories were closed all over the country.

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UPI) — Criminal affidavits were being prepared today against attendants of an unlicensed nursing home who were accused by a grand jury of torturing elderly patients in punishment for their senile transgressions.

The grand jury's four-page report charged that patients were struck, left under restraint in chairs for as long as eight hours at a time, doused with burning antiseptic for incontinence, inadequately fed and in constant danger of being trapped by fire.

The jury said it had heard evidence that "penis was pulled from patient's feet as punishment for their alleged misconduct."

"Many of the problems of improper care of patients could have been eliminated," the jury's report said, "if the family and friends of patients had been interested and concerned enough. Many of the patients had no visitors for months at a time."

It also blamed state and local health departments and fire and safety departments for an "appalling lack of coordination in the supervision of nursing homes and laws and regulations governing them."

'GIVEAWAY' DENTAL WORK PROTESTED

EDMONTON, Alta. (UPI) — The Alberta Dental Association Wednesday protested what it termed a large scale "giveaway" of dental treatment by a missionary school in the Peace River country.

The organized dentists complained that free tooth extractions by students of the Sexsmith Bible College were a threat to patients' health.

Eighteen missionary students started a practical dentistry course at Sexsmith two months ago under the president and founder of Missionary Support Inc., W. G. Lewis of Lincoln, Nebraska.

Lewis isn't a qualified dentist himself but claimed that "six years of college isn't necessary" for dental extractions and repair work.

Contractors Fined For Burning Trash

Two Victoria building contractors each were fined $25 and $3 costs when charged in Colwood RCMP court Wednesday with allowing rubbish fires to be lighted without a permit.

H. H. Gintaut, 2358 Esplanade, and William Tytler, 1705 Kings, were held responsible for fires lighted during the closed fire season by employees working on houses at View Royal.

View Royal volunteer fire department was called to put out a brush fire started from a bonfire set by men working for Mr. Gintaut.

The employer said he had had difficulty finding the fire chief, from whom he intended to obtain a burning permit.

When he complained of getting "the run-around," Magistrate A. I. Thomas chided him for making disparaging remarks about a volunteer firefighting unit.

Lawrence Van Ness, of 2652 Millstream, Langford, was fined $10 and $3 costs when the court found him guilty of harboring a fire hazard on his property, contrary to a local by-law.

Langford fire chief Rod Bayles said he inspected the property and found a quantity of trash and weeds about the

Gas Reported In Milky Way

LONDON (AP) — Astronomers in Leningrad today reported the discovery of a dense nucleus of hot gas in the centre of the milky way.

Moscow Radio, quoting the Soviet government organ Izvestia, said the average temperature inside the nucleus of the galaxy is nearly 18,000 degrees Fahrenheit.

The nucleus is formed of hydrogen atoms, the building blocks of the universe, which are thinly spread through even the most tenuous parts of outer space.

$3 Million Plan Helps Teachers

SASKATOON—Details of a Canadian plan to spend up to $3,000,000 in five years to help in the training of Commonwealth teachers have been outlined by Dr. J. F. Leddy of the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

Dr. Leddy, dean of arts and science, has just returned to Saskatoon after a trip to Oxford University in England where he attended the Commonwealth Education Conference during the last two weeks of July as one of the 20 Canadian delegates.

Under the plan adopted by the meeting, Canada will spend up to $600,000 a year for the next five years for such purposes as to bring this country Commonwealth teachers who want to see Canadian methods in their field. Scholarships would be available for any who wished to remain long enough to get an advanced degree.

Another feature of the same scheme is that Canada will try to organize, at the request of other Commonwealth countries, visits abroad by Canadian educators. "These people," Dr. Leddy explained, "would conduct special short courses for teachers or would remain longer to act as consultants in the establishment of new colleges or the expansion of existing institutions in the less developed countries."

GIRL'S FOOTBALL TACKLE FOILS JAIL BREAKERS

LONDON (UPI) — Thirteen-year-old Janet Ritchie sent two jail breakers spinning head over heels on the platform of busy King's Cross railway station Wednesday night with an impulsive football tackle.

Janet saw two prisoners break away from a group of 12 and make a dash for freedom in the rush-hour crowds. The school girl dived at the ankles of the handcuffed pair and brought them down long enough for police to grab them. The prisoners were being transferred from one jail to another.

Coast Seminar Planned on Joint International Problems

Problems affecting Canada and the United States over a wide field will be the subject of discussions by a score of prominent international figures at a seminar next month on the B.C. coast.

Host of the conference, to take place at Twin Isles near Campbell River, is G. Max Bell, president of F.P. Publications Ltd. which is publisher of the Victoria Times and other papers across Canada.

It will be along the lines of the Pugwash conference held in the east, by industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

Papers will be presented and informal discussions held on a variety of topics in which the two nations have joint interests, including power, gas, oil, trade, labor, education, public affairs, the press and communications generally.

The visiting leaders will meet in Vancouver September 10 and travel by Mr. Bell's yacht Campana to the Twin Isles estate. They will return September 14 to Vancouver.

Among those attending or invited are: Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson, Congressman Frank Coffin of Maine; Blair Fraser, Ottawa writer; William Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia; J. R. White, president of Imperial Oil Ltd.; William Whiteford, president of B.A. Oil; Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta; Frank Hall, Montreal, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress; Elmer Brown, president of the International Typographical Union; Lawrence Layborne, Canadian manager for Time Inc.; Mason Wade, University of Rochester; Nolin Trudeau, Montreal advertising executive; Basil Walters, editor of the Chicago Daily News;

Arthur Laro, executive editor of the Houston (Texas) Post; Charles Armstrong, ex-Victorian now president of the University of Nevada; Ralph Bunche of United Nations; Senator Mike Mansfield, of Montana; Senator Jack Kennedy; Senator Kenneth Keating of Rochester; Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York; and Palmer Hoyt, Denver Post.

Stuart Keate, publisher, and Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Times, are associated with Mr. Bell in arranging the conference and will take part in leading the discussions.

EDGELOW WILL REVIVE SALT WATER POOL PLAN

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today said he will "keep pushing" for establishment of a salt water swimming pool along Beacon Hill Park's shoreline as a Capital Improvement District Commission project.

He said he will revive his proposal this fall that a breakwater be built across the mouth of Horseshoe Bay, immediately west of Finlayson Point. Council considered the suggestion last spring, praised it and decided it could not undertake the project because of a looming tax increase.

"I haven't given up the idea," he said. "It's a good one and I'm going to keep pushing for it. As soon as council's summer recess is over, I'm going to propose that we ask the CIDC to undertake the project."

"It's a natural for them because it would complete the beautification work they have done there."

... HERE
AND THERE ...
With NORMAN CRIBBENS

It takes nerve ... sports car enthusiast Malcolm Anderson of 1020 St. Charles drove into a local gas station with a power mower sitting beside him on the passenger seat.

"Fill her up," he said. With a nod and a smile the attendant walked round to the gas tank, hose in hand.

"No, no," said Malcolm, "not the car, the mower."

The attendant collected a dime.

Revisiting his native Victoria after many years in Centralia, Washington, Robert (Ernie) Crompton was horrified to find our police no longer wear the tall English-style bobby helmet.

"They look like American cops," he snorted.

That big bond-burning ceremony at Kelowna was not so original as most people imagine, says historian Bruce (Pinkie) McKelvie of Cobble Hill.

He recalls that the town of Ladysmith went bankrupt in 1931 when the coal mines closed. But Ladysmith folk were determined to pay off $94,336 in civic debentures even if it meant tightening the belt.

Finally in 1936 they succeeded and there was a public bonfire similar to the one in Kelowna. Ladysmith then became headquarters for Comox Logging and the first experiments were made in trucking logs to tidewater instead of building expensive railways.

It paid off and Ladysmith began the long climb back to prosperity.

Two Victoria ladies agree with me about the horrors of driving in Vancouver. Caught in a stream of traffic in Stanley Park they were forcibly carried over the Lions Gate Bridge against their wish and had to pay tolls both ways.

That place!

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Assistance of the Fire Marshal has been asked in connection with a fire in living quarters of Londonderry Icecreamery, 2053 Cadboro Bay, at 4:20 p.m. Wednesday.

The blaze was reported to be small and caused slight damage.

Proprietor Norman Robertson was unavailable for comment.

Monthly meeting of Vancouver Island Rabbit Breeders' Association will be held in Strawberry Vale Women's Institute off Wilkinson Road on Friday at 8 p.m.

Rev. R. John Young, of Belfast, Ireland, will address the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society Monday at 2 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—When were Canadian passports first issued? J.T.W.

A—In 1947 when the Canadian Citizenship Act was passed in Ottawa. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was the first to take out a Canadian passport.

Q—How old is Victoria? H.T.J.

A—116 years. Victoria was founded as a Hudson's Bay Company trading post in March, 1843, when the future Sir James Douglas selected the site at the southern end of Vancouver Island on the harbor then known as "Cano-sack." It became the capital when the colony of Vancouver Island was formed in 1848.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor, Questions and Answers, 1100 Douglas St., Victoria, B.C. Questions should be sent with full name and address. The Times does not undertake to solve problems on legal matters. No will is attempted to put a value on old coins, stamps or collectors. These should be submitted to dealers.

MAGISTRATE DOUBTS RADIOS DEAFEN DRIVER

Magistrate William Ostler is getting tired of the same old story that car radios are louder than police sirens.

Anthony Vanden Aardweg, 518 Broadway, was fined $25 in city police court today for failing to heed a siren.

He said his car radio was on and windows rolled up, and he "didn't notice" the police car behind him because of other traffic.

"Some of you people must have your radios on at the most deafening pitch. One hears that story all the time. It is inconceivable to me that you can't hear a siren," Mr. Ostler said.

Navy, RCAF to Collaborate In New Coast Defence Plan

Protection of the Pacific Coast from enemy attack will be organized from HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt under a new defence plan announced Wednesday.

Named the Canadian Maritime Pacific Command, the changed set-up will combine navy and air force organizations for purpose of defence.

Its responsibility will be defence of Canada's west coast against attacks from the sea and the protection of sea communications to the Pacific.

RAYNER IN CHARGE

Rear Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer, Pacific Coast, has been named to command the new organization. Group Capt. J. H. Roberts, 43, of Vanderloof, B.C., will be deputy commander, stationed at Naden.

Ships under control of the maritime command include the Second Canadian Escort Squadron of St. Laurent-class destroyer escorts under the command of Capt. J. C. Pratt and the escort squadron of Prestonian class frigates under Capt. Harry Porter.

The air arm of the command will be 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron of Neptune submarine-hunters under command of Wing Commander J. C. McCarthy, based at Comox.

Among new personnel appointed to the maritime command are Wing Commander W. D. Foster, of Renfrew, Ont., to be air staff officer for operations and plans; Sqdn. Ldr. H. Brooks, former command liaison officer, now staff officer air intelligence and operations, and Sqdn. Ldr.

Power Probe Report Aired Next Week

Bennett Given Results Of Shrum Investigation

Report of the Shrum Royal Commission on power matters was received today by Premier Bennett and he said he will make it public next week.

The premier was carrying a huge volume as he entered a cabinet meeting this morning. He would give no hint of the recommendations it contained, adding, "I haven't read it yet."

The Royal Commission headed by Dr. Gordon Shrum, UBC physicist, was ordered by Premier Bennett last November and began sittings the following month. Adjournment came in April after hearings in various parts of the province.

The commission was established as a direct result of charges by former B.C. Power Commission general manager H. Lee Briggs, who earlier this week was named a member of a new federal government National Energy Board.

Mr. Briggs had charged that a planned refinancing of B.C. Power Commission debt to the province would increase costs to the commission customers. He said the rearrangement of finances was unnecessary except for the political advantage it would give the present government in retiring its direct debt earlier than required by the original bond issues.

Mr. Briggs charged also that the plan was part of a scheme to undermine the public power commission in favor of private power interests. Mr. Briggs gave testimony at many of the hearings, appearing at his own expense after being fired for his comments by the power commission. The three commission members later resigned.

An interim report delivered by the Shrum commission to the last session of the legislature, set up a compromise system for refinancing the B.C. Power Commission debt without extra cost to the consumers. This was hailed as a vindication of Mr. Briggs. It was felt this week the appointment to the National Energy Board was a further vindication.

TO GIVE ALL

Briggs Dedicated To New Job

H. Lee Briggs has dedicated himself to all-out service on Canada's behalf as a member of the newly-appointed national energy board.

"I intend to give this job everything I have," the former general manager of B.C. Power Commission told the Times Wednesday.

Mr. Briggs, who has been ranging the breadth of the U.S. on a special project as a consulting engineer, was interviewed in Seattle by long-distance telephone.

He said he was "very pleased" with his appointment to the federal board but he would not comment on his supporters' claims that the appointment "vindicated" his personal crusade against Premier W. A. C. Bennett's power policies.

"I just haven't any comments I could make at the present time," said the man who was fired for bucking the Social Credit government.

Mr. Briggs said the appointment was not a complete surprise because he had had indications that his name was being considered.

He added that he would have to move his home from Victoria to Ottawa as a result of his new post.

SKYGAZERS HELPED SCIENCE

Victoria's amateur astronomers, who counted 150 meteors Wednesday night in two hours 15 minutes, of observation, made a contribution to the vast amount of knowledge which will be required to send man to outer space.

Between 10 p.m. and 12:15 a.m. 30 members of Victoria Centre, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, counted meteors in the annual "Perseid shower" in a program arranged by Franklin Loehde, Edmonton, university student employed at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory for the summer.

Results will be sent to the National Research Council in Ottawa, which for a number of years has been gathering data to determine the density of particles beyond the earth's atmosphere.

"That must be known before a space ship can be sent away from the earth," Mr. Loehde said. "For instance, it is easy to see that there would be a much greater chance of it striking a meteor at this time of year, while the shower is on."

Similar groups at Calgary, Edmonton and Montreal counted the shooting stars, and will in turn send results to the NRC.

NRC findings are made available to United States authorities.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

A Poor Posture Is Harmful to Pelvis

Many women have an incorrectly balanced pelvis. The tendency is to stick the hips out in the back. Yet the balance of the pelvis is of the greatest importance. In the first place, when the hips ride out in back like a trailer an otherwise lovely, silhouette is ruined. Then, too, this poor posture causes strain and fatigue. This is a very prevalent feminine figure fault and every woman would be wise to check on it. You may have fallen into this poor posture habit without realizing it.

In order to get the feeling do the following exercise. Stand tall. Pull the hips under as you bend the knees about one-third down. Hold while you count to five slowly. Straighten legs and continue.

Weak, lax abdominal muscles are often a contributing factor to swayback. This is a splendid exercise for strengthening these important elastic bands so that they can do the work they should. Lie on the floor. Bend both knees and place the feet on the floor. Your arms should rest on the floor overhead. Keep the knees bent and the feet on the floor as you raise your trunk and touch the floor with the fingers on each side of you. Lower trunk to the floor and return arms to overhead position. Continue.

It also will be helpful to you if you will keep your knees relaxed when you stand or walk. In other words do not hyper-extend them at the end of each step. If you do this you are almost certain to develop swayback.

If you would like to have my tested abdominal exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for Leaflet No. 2 to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

LOUISE DAVIS

On Etiquette

Selecting best man: Is it appropriate to have a relative of the bridegroom as best man? Or should he be someone outside of the family?

Louise Davis answers: A bridegroom may have anyone whom he wishes as best man. He can choose his father, an uncle, brother or best friend. He can even have his bride's brother, providing the two men are close friends.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CHOCOLATE FRUIT DROPS

Two cups light or dark raisins, 1 can sweetened condensed milk, 2½ cups flaked coconut, 2 (6 or 7-ounce) packages semi-sweet chocolate pieces, 1 teaspoon vanilla. Rinse and drain raisins, and dry thoroughly on paper towels. Stir all ingredients together. Drop by teaspoonfuls onto well greased baking sheet allowing room for cookies to spread. Bake in moderate oven (350 degrees F.) 8 to 10 minutes. Remove at once with broad spatula and cool on wire rack. Makes about 4 dozen confections.

DISHES

Blasting To Replace Washing

NEW YORK (UPI)—Ladies it won't be long now before you'll be able literally to blast the dirt off your dishes with millions of the silentest explosions you never heard.

Blasting won't hurt them a bit. And they'll sparkle like gems. You can wash your gems, too, with the same machine.

Just now this modern noise-maker (noise your ear can't hear) is used in industry for myriad purposes. Present uses include removal of dirt, grime and grease from jet engine nozzles and oil filters which until now had to be discarded and replaced with new ones. The ultrasonic cleaning makes them like new.

There is only one lady in all the world who has one of those machines. She is Mrs. Babel Welden of Boca Raton, Fla. She won it in a quiz show. Hers is an ultrasonic silverware and jewelry cleaner which up to now had been made only for industrial cleaning.

Already cards of congratulation are being received by Mr. and Mrs. H. Harsant, 2743 Quadra Street, who celebrate their golden wedding anniversary on Friday. The couple will hold "open house" for friends and relatives from 2 to 4 p.m., and again from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m. A son, Mr. James Ashley Harsant, is here from Edmonton for the occasion, also Mr. Will Parrish. Mr. Harsant has been in Canada for 84 years. Best wishes have been received from Mrs. Harsant's brother and sister in England.

DEAR ABBY . . .

She's Old and Happy, Honey!

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: What do you do about a great-aunt who thinks the people on TV can see her?

She talks back to them and everything. Also before going in to watch Perry Como or Gary Moore (they're her favorites) she gets herself all fixed up for them.

I am having a terrible time trying to convince her that there is no use talking to those people. Can you help me? I am 12 and my great-aunt must be about 100.

ROSALIE DEAR ROSALIE: If your great-aunt enjoys "talking" to the people on TV, why spoil her fun? Live and let her live a little.

DEAR ABBY: My husband has his own business and makes a very good living. Here is my problem. He resents paying doctor and dentist bills. He pays all other bills on time, but he puts off the doctor's and dentist's until I am so ashamed I could die.

He handles all the money so I can't do a thing about it. We see some of these professional men and their wives socially and I can't look them in the face knowing we have owed them for a year. Can you help me?

MRS. L. DEAR MRS. L.: Your husband ought to sit down with some doctors and dentists and learn about the sacrifices and lean years that were a part of their training. Doctors and dentists have only their time and skill to sell, and they can't afford to give it away any more than a grocer can afford to give away groceries. What a pity the memory of a toothache or an ingrown toenail is so fleeting.

DEAR ABBY: I am 44 years old and have just found God. I am married to a man who does not know God and does not want to seek Him. We have four children and they do not know God, nor do they seek Him because they are just like their father, but I pray for their salvation. I study with a Bible group five nights a week. I have to drive 80 miles as we do not live in the city. That means I must leave before supper. My husband tells me I am sinning to leave my family while I go to be in God's presence. Please tell me if I am sinning if I am going to serve the Lord?

M.K. DEAR M.K.: We best serve the Lord by serving our fellow men. The Lord will understand if you perform your wife and motherly duties first, and worship Him when it does not require that your family shift for themselves.

DEAR ABBY: I have been seeing a certain guy for about a month. He has a car and we park and make out quite a lot. My problem is: He won't say "I love you." He will say, "You're the greatest," or "I think you terrific," but he is very careful not to say "I love you." And these are the words I want to hear the most. I have said, "I love you" to him but he won't say it back. How can I get him to say these words?

KAY DEAR KAY: This fellow is trying not to mislead you. He thinks you are "terrific" and definitely "The greatest" but he isn't certain that he loves you. He is honest. You are lucky. If he ever says, "I love you," you'll know he means it.

CONFIDENTIAL TO R.B.: If one does not like another because of his race, color or creed, why not just leave him alone?

What's your problem? For a personal reply, write to ABBY in care of this newspaper. Enclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

WHILE SHE WAITS

Like Any Other Woman, Queen Knits, Dreams and Plans for Baby's Birth

LONDON (AP)—The Queen waits for the birth of a baby the way most women have always done.

She is knitting and sewing baby clothes and discussing nursery furniture with Prince Philip.

Appearances of state, the making of speeches and the shaking of endless rows of hands are laid aside until after the birth early next year.

This temporary release from official duty will be something the 33-year-old Queen has not experienced since she ascended the throne on Feb. 6, 1952.

Since then she has led the world's busiest life. Her hours with Prince Philip and their children, Prince Charles and Princess Anne, had to be sandwiched in between rounds of receptions, ship launchings and overseas tours.

Queen Elizabeth and the Prince ignore one tradition followed by most families. Clothes are not made and the nursery is not decorated on a blue for a boy or pink for a girl basis.

The color scheme in the nursery is buttercup yellow.

Before Prince Charles she confided to her former governess that she believed it was more tactful that way. She is reported to have said then:

"Why fancy a little girl turning up and finding the wrong colored cot waiting for her? Think of her feelings."

Besides, this way, no one can guess what we really are hoping for ourselves."

ROSE'S LIME JUICE

Made by the makers of
ROSE'S LIME MARMALADE

Decor of Gladioli For Morning Wedding

Crimson and white gladioli decorated St. Andrew's Cathedral for the morning service which united Miss Monica Catherine White and Harold Thomas Harrison, Father D. Johnson officiated at the ceremony for the daughter of Thomas White, Beechwood Avenue, and the late Mrs. White, and the son of Mrs. Pearl Harrison, Gore Street.

Organist was Miss Margaret MacKay and Miss L. Hanley was soloist.

A lustrous gown of heavy slipper satin was worn by the bride. Its high sabrina neckline was enhanced with delicate lace and the sleeves were tulle point. Skirt was floor-length. A pillbox hat held the finger-tip length veil. Only jewelry was a string of pearls, gift of the groom. Red roses and white carnations were in the bridal bouquet. Bride was given in marriage by her father.

Dainty street-length dresses of tulle were worn by bridal attendants, Miss Lois Doran, maid of honor, and bridesmaids, Miss Judy White and Miss Arlene White, sisters of the bride. They had white bandeaux and carried bouquets of pink carnations centred with one red rosebud.

Hank Pylpa was best man and ushers were Tom White, Jr., and Ron Chamberlin.

A three-tier cake, made by aunt of the bride, Mrs. D. E. Danes, was cut by the newlyweds at a reception in Holyrood House. James Grant proposed the toast.

For a honeymoon to Portland and the mainland, the new Mrs. Harrison donned a royal blue suit and white accessories. Her corsage was of white carnations.

ENGAGED

Mrs. Marion C. F. Downie, 2924 Mt. Baker View Road, wishes to announce the engagement of her daughter, Catriona Paterson, to David William Brown, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Lorne Brown, 3965 Locarno Lane. The wedding will take place in the Oak Bay Beach Hotel on September 5. The bride-elect is a 1959 graduate in pharmacy from University of British Columbia, and the groom-elect is entering his final year at UBC in electrical engineering. Miss Libby Stokes, Hong Kong, will be the bridesmaid and Mr. Bob Hodges, Victoria, the groomsmen.

Capital City Lodge, No. 303, Loyal True Blue Association, Gorge Park picnic, Saturday, 2 p.m.; invite friends.

Before Marriage

Mrs. M. MacKenzie, the former Miss Edna Mills, was honored prior to her recent wedding with a shower given by Mrs. H. Schaburg at her Vernon Avenue home. Gifts were in a blue and white basket and honor guest was presented with a corsage of pink sweetheart roses. The honor guest's mother, Mrs. C. Olson, received pink carnations in corsage. There were 20 guests, all fellow workers of the bride in the Credit Bureau of Victoria, Ltd.

'Old Arch' Offers Million to Ingemar

MONTREAL (UPI)—Light-heavyweight champion Archie Moore—"Old Man Dynamite"—who again knocked out challenger Yvon Durelle—today planned a "quick money" South American tour next month while negotiating for a "three-million-dollar" fight with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson.

The ring's all-time knockout king and record-equalling light-heavyweight defender will receive a guaranteed $175,000 for belting out Canadian Durelle Wednesday night at 252 of the third round, and he wants to pick up "a couple hundred thousand" in September and October fights in Argentina and Brazil.

Manager Jack Kearns says he has relayed to heavyweight ruler Johansson the offer of a $1,000,000 guarantee to defend against 43-year-old Moore. In Kearns' cable to Johansson at Goteborg, Sweden, he said the million guarantee would be in a bank when Ingemar signs. Kearns declined to identify the "very important Canadian and American interests" he says will put up the guarantee but predicted a Moore-Johansson fight would draw a $3,000,000 gate.

"Certainly I'd like to fight Johansson," Moore said, "but right now I want to get busy with South American fights. Yes, I may make a defence down there."

Another successful defence would break the record he equalled Wednesday night before 11,555 at the Montreal Forum, where his eighth defence tied the 175-pound division's mark set by Maxie Rosenbloom. Maxie lost the title when he risked it the ninth time against Bob Olin in 1934.

Archie stretched his all-time pro boxing knockout record to 128 when he floored Durelle. At Goteborg, Johansson said today he would gladly give

Moore a shot at his title for a million-dollar guarantee—after he meets Floyd Patterson again. "Old Archie is well, come if the money is right, but only after I have fought Floyd Patterson again," Johansson said.

"I haven't heard a word from either Moore or his manager," Ingemar said when informed about the offer.

Ingemar said he was not surprised that Moore knocked out Durelle.

"I had expected that. Moore is an excellent fighter and the fans would certainly pay a lot of money to see him fight me for the heavyweight title."

Promoter Eddie Quinn apparently lost money on Wednesday's scheduled 15-rounder, which had been postponed twice—once by Archie's bruised left heel and once by an emergency ear operation on Archie's wife.

Quinn announced the gross gate at $140,519 and the net gate at $122,627. In addition, the telecast to the United States brought a $125,000 fee.

Moore's $175,000 guarantee was against 40 per cent of the net gate and TV money, totaling only about $98,050. He'll take the guarantee. Durelle was guaranteed $15,000 against 20 per cent of gate and TV, only 10 per cent of Moore's percentage. Durelle will receive only his $15,000.

SPACE CAPSULE FIRED FROM WEST COAST BASE

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (UPI)—The Air Force fired a Discoverer V satellite rocket today in an effort to launch and recover from orbit a space capsule similar to one planned for America's first astronaut.

General Scene of Digging with Trial Island in Background

FIRST OF A SERIES

Waterfront Diggers Seek Record of Past

Starting herewith and continuing daily for two weeks The Times will publish an authoritative report on one of the most interesting projects on this part of the island for many years. The author, in the article below, explains the project in his opening paragraph.

By WILSON DUFF

Curator of Anthropology, Provincial Museum

Down at the east end of McNeill Bay or Shoal Bay, between Gonzales Hill and Oak Bay Golf Course, is a beautiful rocky point with twin beaches along its sides. It's a favorite spot for picnics, fishing, and driftwood gathering. It also happens to be an archaeological site, and for the last several days we have had our imaginations at work, wondering about the people who enjoyed this spot before us, 200 or 2,000 years ago.

Now we are going to find out many things about them. We do not have any magic time machine to transport us back through the centuries to prehistoric Indian days, we are going to use the pure detective work of archaeology.

For the next two weeks, a Provincial Museum crew will be conducting a "dig" on the site, and we'll keep Times readers informed of our findings with a daily report. The crew will consist of myself, Assistant Curator Michael Kew, our summer assistants John Sendley and Richard Cox, and assorted volunteers. Cleve Hughes, former chief inspector in the mines department, has already helped out by surveying the site. Mrs. Edith Cross and other capable amateur archaeologists are standing by to do some serious digging. It may be that we can also make room for other interested volunteers if they are willing to abide by the rules of the dig.

Corrosion Threatens Work of Ages

Our site, which will become known to archaeologists as DeRt-1, is not particularly large and probably not very important. We chose it because it is small enough for us to handle and because it is being destroyed gradually year by year by tidal corrosion.

The midden covers only a small area and is about three feet deep. By "midden" we mean the accumulation of shells, ash, stones and other refuse left behind after a long period of human habitation. We do not know what

$250 Million Canada Radar Called 'Colossal Blunder'

Attack Levelled By Ex-RCAF Man

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Group Capt. Charles Limbrick, retired RCAF radar chief, said today the Mid-Canada warning line was a "colossal blunder and waste of money."

He said he strenuously opposed construction of the electronic warning line along the 55th parallel but "the scientists rammed it down our throats."

"I was completely and utterly against this abortion of a Mid-Canada line and nearly lost my job over it," Group Capt. Limbrick said in an interview.

"In fact, I was relieved of my duties for a couple of weeks when I refused to sign an order for the experimental equipment."

Later, Defence Minister Pearkes told reporters after a cabinet meeting that the Mid-Canada line is an essential element in the North American warning system.

He said the original identification of enemy planes would be made by the Distant Early Warning line in the Arctic but the route of enemy bombers would be lost if it were not for the Mid-Canada line.

The Mid-Canada line would establish the route of hostile bombers before they entered the Pinetree radar control system, he said. There was "no likelihood" of an attacking force escaping detection.

Group Capt. Limbrick retired last year as RCAF director of radio warfare. Before that, he was director of guided missiles. He was responsible for Canadian radar defences during the Second World War.

"I'm no amateur at this business and know what I'm talking about," he said.

Wanted Big Control Centres Instead

The group captain said he had proposed construction of eight big control radars similar to the one at RCAF Air Division headquarters at Metz, France.

In talks here Tuesday, Defence Minister Pearkes and U.S. Defence Secretary Neil McElroy agreed that more heavy radars will have to be built in Canada to control interceptors and missiles.

Group Capt. Limbrick telephoned The Canadian Press today after reading a published CP article describing construction of the Mid-Canada Line as a "colossal goof."

"That article is absolutely right," he said. "The only difference is that I knew about it five years ago."

He said the Mid-Canada Line cost $250,000,000 though the original estimate was less than $100,000,000.

He said $100,000,000 could have been saved by construction of his proposed eight heavy radars and the necessity of building more radars now would have been averted.

'They Can Hang Me From Yardarm'

"I'm so mad I don't care if they hang me from the yardarm for saying all this," Group Capt. Limbrick said.

"I'm furious when I think of the money that was wasted."

He said the Mid-Canada line "was no good in the first place." It couldn't distinguish between aircraft and decoys and it was built too far south.

"I opposed it from the start but was pushed into it," he said.

The Mid-Canada line when built was only an experiment, he said, while radar was proven.

"If anything stinks to high heaven, this is it," Group Capt. Limbrick said.

He said Mid-Canada line was paid for entirely by Canada.

The United States paid two-thirds of the cost of Pinetree and Canada one-third. The U.S. financed alone the Distant Early Warning line in the Canadian Arctic.

The RCAF declined immediate comment on Group Capt. Limbrick's statement.

Group Capt. Limbrick, 62, has no civilian job though he was military electronics adviser to Canadian Westinghouse after his retirement from the RCAF.

He said he had not publicly attacked the Mid-Canada line before because of security reasons and loyalty to the RCAF.

He said that when he saw the CP article he had to say something because he was directly involved as the responsible RCAF officer at the time.

"I didn't make the $230,000,000 goof," he said.

Last year Group Capt. Limbrick in a magazine article charged that the U.S. is hampering and even blocking defence scientific co-operation between Canada and the U.S.

He has also said the Arrow interceptor could have been flying today but for the endless reviews of the project by the government.

The Mid-Canada line runs from Hopedale, Labrador, to Dawson Creek, B.C., where it hooks up with the western section of the Pinetree system.

'SILENT TREATMENT' URGED FOR KHRUSHCHEV

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) urged the American people today to be "civil but silent" during Soviet Premier Khrushchev's visit to the U.S. next month.

"Let there be no cheers for the red dictator, no crowds assembled to greet him, no flattery or flowers. Let our people be civil but silent," Dodd told the Senate in a prepared speech.

Dodd, former prosecutor at the Nuremberg war crimes trial, called the invitation to Khrushchev a "dreadful wrong." He said the visit was equivalent to "having Hitler in the White House."

Dodd called the Soviet Premier the "hangman of the Ukraine" and the "butcher of Budapest."

"I hope that during Khrushchev's visit we shall hear church bells in the land tolling their remembrance for the murdered millions behind the iron curtain," he said. "I hope that there will be public observance of prayer for the deliverance of the captive nations."

HIT BY FIRE HOSE

Child Dies Of Injuries

A five-year-old Saanich boy knocked by a flailing fire hose on to sharp rocks Wednesday died of brain and other injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

Dead is Donald Richard Stewart, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan Stewart, 3314 Fircrest Place.

The lad was hurled 20 feet by a catapulting fire hose being unreeled by Saanich firemen putting out a grass fire near the Stewart home at 1.30 p.m. Wednesday.

The hose had been connected to a hydrant at Knight and Oakcrest and was being unwound by a truck driving down Knight on to Fircrest.

SNAGGED ON COUPLING

Donald Stewart and a friend, Russell Batstone, 1541 McRae, were running along Knight when the hose, snagged by a jammed coupling on the truck, suddenly drew taut, then came barreling toward the two boys.

Russell managed to get out of the way but the hose whipped the Stewart boy off his feet and sent him crashing into a sharp rock outcropping.

VIENTIANE, Laos (Reuters)—Royal Laotian government forces were reported today to be reoccupying villages in northern Laos following a partial withdrawal by pro-Communist rebels.

Prowling Red Warship In Crash

KIEL, Germany (AP) — A Soviet destroyer, prowling in the western Baltic where NATO exercises are in progress, collided in fog with a small German coastal freighter today.

The bow of the 300-ton freighter Christel was crushed but her crew of six escaped injury.

The skipper of the Christel messaged that the Soviet destroyer stood by, then made off into the fog with two other Soviet vessels after it was clear that the freighter was in no danger. The skipper was unable to get the name of the Soviet destroyer.

German naval sources said they suspect the three war vessels were operating in the area because the Russians know that Britain, Denmark, Norway and West German naval units are on manoeuvres.

Big Offensive Claimed By Anti-Castro Forces

MIAMI (AP)—A spokesman for anti-Castro groups in Miami said today a full-scale counter-revolutionary offensive is under way in central Cuba.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told the Miami News that the insurgents are former Cuban soldiers and defectors from Fidel Castro's army who landed near Trinidad from the Dominican Republic.

Jose Eleuterio Pedraza, former Cuban general, is commanding the task force by short-wave radio from the Dominican Republic, the spokesman said. Anti-Castro leaders here said they talked with Pedraza by telephone this morning.

Former dictator Fulgencio Batista is not a participant in the movement, the spokesman said.

"He is a closed book in Cuba now."

Meanwhile, gunmen struck in Havana today as Castro per-

Dig that McNeill Bay project.

If th' radar line kin repel that attack, guess it kin withstand anything.

Glad them bridge workers are back on th' job. Thet strike caught 'em with their spans down.

LONDON (AP) — Rev. Hugh Herbert recommended today that married couples vow "to tease and to tickle—until death do us part."

"I'm a bit unorthodox," said the rector of St. John's Anglican Church in Surrey, "but marriage should be fun. Far too many marriages are wrecked on the rocks of monotony."

The clergyman said he first suggested amending the marriage service 20 years ago in an article he wrote for his parish magazine. He revived it for the magazine's current issue.

"In the marriage service there are some very august words — 'to love, comfort, honor, obey, serve, cherish,'" said the rector. "I'm not sure the prayer book should not be enriched by a new phrase, 'to tease and to tickle till death do us part.'"

A veteran of 30 years of married life, he continued:

"As long as a wife retains up her sleeve a certain elusive laughter, her husband will always rise to it as surely as a goldfish to ants' eggs dropped into a bowl."

"Some marriages seem to go so very flat and decorous."

Every Friday the good husband usually hands over his salary into his lady's hand. Every Friday the woman counts back some change into her lord's hands.

"This is your pocket money, dear husband," she says.

A wife, the rector said, should model herself on Cleopatra, whose "infinite variety never grew stale."

What does Mrs. Herbert think of the suggestion?

"I haven't read it," she said. A few minutes later she had.

"I've never known you to hand over your wages to your dear wife," she said looking at her husband. "That's something we can discuss."

$3 Million Plan Helps Teachers

SASKATOON—Details of a Canadian plan to spend up to $3,000,000 in five years to help in the training of Commonwealth teachers have been outlined by Dr. J. F. Leddy of the University of Saskatchewan in Saskatoon.

Dr. Leddy, dean of arts and science, has just returned to Saskatoon after a trip to Oxford University in England where he attended the Commonwealth Education Conference during the last two weeks of July as one of the 20 Canadian delegates.

Under the plan adopted by the meeting, Canada will spend up to $600,000 a year for the next five years for such purposes as to bring this country to see Canadian methods in their field. Scholarships would be available for any who wished to remain long enough to get an advanced degree.

Another feature of the same scheme is that Canada will try to organize, at the request of other Commonwealth countries, visits abroad by Canadian educators. "These people," Dr. Leddy explained, "would conduct special short courses for teachers or would remain longer to act as consultants in the establishment of new colleges or the expansion of existing institutions in the less developed countries."

GIRL'S FOOTBALL TACKLE FOILS JAIL BREAKERS

LONDON (UPI) — Thirteen-year-old Janet Ritchie sent two jail breakers spinning head over heels on the platform of busy King's Cross railway station Wednesday night with an impulsive football tackle.

Janet saw two prisoners break away from a group of 12 and make a dash for freedom in the rush-hour crowds. The school girl dived at the ankles of the handcuffed pair and brought them down long enough for police to grab them. The prisoners were being transferred from one jail to another.

Coast Seminar Planned on Joint International Problems

Problems affecting Canada and the United States over a wide field will be the subject of discussions by a score of prominent international figures at a seminar next month on the B.C. coast.

Host of the conference, to take place at Twin Isles near Campbell River, is G. Max Bell, president of F.P. Publications Ltd., which is publisher of the Victoria Times and other papers across Canada.

It will be along the lines of the Pugwash conference held in the east by industrialist Cyrus Eaton.

Papers will be presented and informal discussions held on a variety of topics in which the two nations have joint interests, including power, gas, oil, trade, labor, education, public affairs, the press and communications generally.

The visiting leaders will meet in Vancouver September 10 and travel by Mr. Bell's yacht Campana to the Twin Isles estate. They will return September 14 to Vancouver.

Among those attending or invited are: Liberal leader Lester B. Pearson, Congressman Frank Col-fin of Maine; Blair Fraser, Ottawa writer; William Nicks, president of the Bank of Nova Scotia; J. R. White, president of Imperial Oil Ltd.; William Whiteford, president of B.A. Oil; Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta; Frank Hall, Montreal, vice-president of the Canadian Labor Congress; Elmer Brown, president of the International Typographical Union; Lawrence Layborne, Canadian manager for Time Inc.; Mason Wade, University of Rochester; Nolin Trudeau, Montreal advertising executive; Basil Walters, editor of the Chicago Daily News;

Arthur Laro, executive editor of the Houston (Texas) Post; Charles Armstrong, ex-Victorian now president of the University of Nevada; Ralph Bunche of United Nations; Senator Mike Mansfield, of Montana; Senator Jack Kennedy; Senator Kenneth Keating of Rochester; Governor Nelson Rockefeller of New York; and Palmer Hoyt, Denver Post.

Stuart Keate, publisher, and Bruce Hutchison, editor of the Times, are associated with Mr. Bell in arranging the conference and will take part in leading the discussions.

EDGELOW WILL REVIVE SALT WATER POOL PLAN

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow today said he will "keep pushing" for establishment of a salt water swimming pool along Beacon Hill Park's shoreline as a Capital Improvement District Commission project.

He said he will revive his proposal this fall that a breakwater be built across the mouth of Horsehoe Bay, immediately west of Finlayson Point. Council considered the suggestion last spring, praised it and decided it could not undertake the project because of a looming tax increase.

"I haven't given up the idea," he said. "It's a good one and I'm going to keep pushing for it. As soon as council's summer recess is over, I'm going to propose that we ask the CIDC to undertake the project."

"It's a natural for them because it would complete the beautification work they have done there."

... HERE
AND THERE ...
With NORMAN CRIBBENS

It takes nerve . . . sports car enthusiast Malcolm Anderson of 1020 St. Charles drove into a local gas station with a power-mower sitting beside him on the passenger seat.

"Fill her up," he said. With a nod and a smile the attendant walked round to the gas tank, hose in hand.

"No, no," said Malcolm, "not the car, the mower."

The attendant collected a dime.

Revisiting his native Victoria after many years in Centralia, Washington, Robert (Ernie) Crompton was horrified to find our police no longer wear the tall English-style bobby helmet.

"They look like American cops," he snorted.

That big bond-burning ceremony at Kelowna was not so original as most people imagine, says historian Bruce (Pinkie) McKelvie of Cobble Hill.

He recalls that the town of Ladysmith went bankrupt in 1931 when the coal mines closed. But Ladysmith folk were determined to pay off $94,336 in civic debentures even if it meant tightening the belt.

Finally in 1936 they succeeded and there was a public bonfire similar to the one in Kelowna. Ladysmith then became headquarters for Comox Logging and the first experiments were made in trucking logs to tidewater instead of building expensive railways.

It paid off and Ladysmith began the long climb back to prosperity.

Two Victoria ladies agree with me about the horrors of driving in Vancouver. Caught in a stream of traffic in Stanley Park they were forcibly carried over the Lions Gate Bridge against their wish and had to pay tolls both ways.

TOPICS OF THE DAY

Assistance of the Fire Marshal has been asked in connection with a fire in living quarters of Londonderry Icecreamery, 2053 Cadboro Bay, at 4.20 p.m. Wednesday.

The blaze was reported to be small and caused slight damage.

Proprietor Norman Robertson was unavailable for comment.

Monthly meeting of Vancouver Island Rabbit Breeders' Association will be held in Strawberry Vale Women's Institute off Wilkinson Road on Friday at 8 p.m.

Rev. R. John Young, of Belfast, Ireland, will address the Afternoon Auxiliary of the Women's Missionary Society Monday at 2 p.m. in Metropolitan United Church.

ASK THE TIMES

Q—When were Canadian passports first issued? J.T.W.

A—In 1947 when the Canadian Citizenship Act was passed in Ottawa. Prime Minister Mackenzie King was the first to take out a Canadian passport.

Q—How old is Victoria?

A—118 years. Victoria was founded as a Hudson's Bay Company trading post in 1843, when the future Sir James Douglas selected the site at the southern end of Vancouver Island on the harbor then known as "Cannasack." It became the capital when the colony of Vancouver Island was formed in 1848.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the question along to The Times, addressed to "Ask the Times," Editor, Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve controversies or legal problems. Nor will it attempt to put a value on old coins, stamps or collectibles. These should be submitted to dealers.

A large weather system north of Vancouver Island will give increasing cloudiness here overnight, and mostly cloudy skies Friday, according to weatherman William Mackie.

"That is the pessimistic view," he said. "There might be a bit of sunshine."

Temperatures will be in the cool range of between 52 and 68 degrees, and winds will be southwesterly at from 15 to 20 miles per hour.

Incorrect address was given in The Times Wednesday for Gerald James Hawes, 21, who was given a suspended sentence in Oak Bay and Saanich courts Tuesday when found guilty of acts of vandalism.

It should have been 2655 Belmont Avenue, the address Hawes gave police.

Two young men each were fined $15 in city police court today when they pleaded guilty to charges of being minors in possession of liquor.

Clifford Chudy, 19, of Brentwood, had two cases of beer in the back seat of his car, and Raymond J. Racette, 833 Admirals, carried a dozen beer on a street, police said.

Mrs. J. G. N. Merriman battled flames with a garden hose until Saanich firemen arrived to douse a fire in her clothes dryer at 12.30 p.m. today. Mrs. Merriman, 3814 Merriman Drive, said she thought a short circuit was responsible.

"I had shut it off about a half-hour before. I smelled smoke, went downstairs to the basement and saw it all in flames. I don't know whether I put it out or the firemen did."

Robert Allan McDonald, 1023 Mason, was fined $50 and $3 costs in Colwood RCMP court Wednesday when he pleaded guilty to a charge of drinking wine in Thetis Lake Park.

MAGISTRATE DOUBTS RADIOS DEAFEN DRIVER

Magistrate William Ostler is getting tired of the same old story that car radios are louder than police sirens.

Anthonyus Vanden Aardweg, 518 Broadway, was fined $25 in city police court today for failing to heed a siren.

He said his car radio was on and windows rolled up, and "didn't notice" the police car behind him because of other traffic.

"Some of you people must have your radios on at the most deafening pitch. One hears that story all the time. It is inconceivable to me that you can't hear a siren," Mr. Ostler said.

Tourist Traffic Down From 1958 Bonner Reports

Tourist traffic in British Columbia for the first six months of 1959 is down 5.6 per cent from the same period last year, it was announced by Trade Minister Robert Bonner today.

There were 103,888 tourist vehicle permits issued as compared to 110,013 in the same period of 1958.

A fractional decline in tourist entries was apparent throughout all of Canada in June and a 5 per cent decline was noted for the six-month period. In B.C. in June, however, there was a slight increase over the same month last year.

Protection of the Pacific Coast from enemy attack will be organized from HMC Dockyard in Esquimalt under a new defence plan announced Wednesday.

Named the Canadian Maritime Pacific Command, the changed set-up will combine navy and air force organizations for purpose of defence.

Its responsibility will be defence of Canada's west coast against attacks from the sea and the protection of sea communications to the Pacific.

RAYNER IN CHARGE

Rear-Admiral H. S. Rayner, flag officer, Pacific Coast, has been named to command the new organization—Group Capt. J. H. Roberts, 43, of Vancouver, B.C., will be deputy commander, stationed at Naden.

Ships under control of the maritime command include the Second Canadian Escort Squadron of St. Laurent-class destroyer escorts under the command of Capt. J. C. Pratt and the escort squadron of Prestonian class frigates under Capt. Harry Porter.

The air arm of the command will be 407 Maritime Patrol Squadron of Neptune submarine-hunters under command of Wing Commander J. C. McCarthy, based at Comox.

Among new personnel appointed to the maritime command are Wing Commander W. D. Foster, of Renfrew, Ont., to be air staff officer for operations and plans; Sqdn. Ldr. H. Brooks, former command liaison officer, now staff officer air intelligence and operations, and Sqdn. Ldr.

American Facing Charge Requests Aid From Consul

An American citizen from San Francisco pleaded not guilty in city police court today to a charge of impersonating a peace officer.

Patrick K. Hocker, a tourist, was remanded to Monday for trial and asked to be permitted to contact the United States Consulate in Vancouver meanwhile.

Hocker, said he wanted the consul to represent him at his hearing.

Police said Hocker was picked up in connection with another matter, which could result in other charges.

It is alleged in this same connection he falsely represented himself as an American policeman, and the charge was subsequently laid under the Criminal Code of Canada.

Hocker's trial could be a test case of the Criminal Code section's validity when applied to alleged impersonation of a peace officer other than Canadian.

Power Probe Report Aired Next Week

Bennett Given Results Of Shrum Investigation

Report of the Shrum Royal Commission on power matters was received today by Premier Bennett and he said he will make it public next week.

The premier was carrying a huge volume as he entered a cabinet meeting this morning. He would give no hint of the recommendations it contained, adding, "I haven't read it yet."

The Royal Commission headed by Dr. Gordon Shrum, UBC physicist, was ordered by Premier Bennett last November and began sittings the following month. Adjournment came in April after hearings in various parts of the province.

The commission was established as a direct result of charges by former B.C. Power Commission general manager H. Lee Briggs, who earlier this week was named a member of a new federal government National Energy Board.

Mr. Briggs had charged that a planned refinancing of B.C. Power Commission debt to the province would increase costs to the commission customers. He said the rearrangement of finances was unnecessary except for the political advantage it would give the present government in retiring its direct debt earlier than required by the original bond issues.

Mr. Briggs charged also that the plan was part of a scheme to undermine the public power commission in favor of private power interests. Mr. Briggs gave testimony at many of the hearings, appearing at his own expense after being fired for his comments by the power commission. The three commission members later resigned.

An interim report delivered by the Shrum commission to the last session of the legislature, set up a compromise system for refinancing the BCPC debt without extra cost to the consumers. This was hailed as a vindication of Mr. Briggs. It was felt this week the appointment to the National Energy Board was a further vindication.

TRAFFIC FINES
In city police court today: Allan D. Schoenmaier, 9645 West Saanich, $10 for failing to register a motor vehicle.

Roderick A. Blanchard, 2583 Thompson, $25 and licence suspension for speeding over 30.

TO GIVE ALL

Briggs Dedicated To New Job

H. Lee Briggs has dedicated himself to all-out service on Canada's behalf as a member of the newly-appointed national energy board.

"I intend to give this job everything I have," the former general manager of B.C. Power Commission told The Times Wednesday.

Mr. Briggs, who has been ranging the breadth of the U.S. on a special project as a consulting engineer, was interviewed in Seattle by long-distance telephone.

He said he was "very pleased" with his appointment to the federal board but he would not comment on his supporters' claims that the appointment "vindicated" his personal crusade against Premier W. A. C. Bennett's power policies.

"I just haven't any comments I could make at the present time," said the man who was fired for bucking the Social Credit government.

Mr. Briggs said the appointment was not a complete surprise because he had had indications that his name was being considered.

He added that he would have to move his home from Victoria to Ottawa as a result of his new post.

SKYGAZERS HELPED SCIENCE

Victoria's amateur astronomers, who counted 150 meteors Wednesday night in two hours 15 minutes, of observation, made a contribution to the vast amount of knowledge which will be required to send man to outer space.

Between 10 p.m. and 12.15 a.m. 30 members of Victoria Centre, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, counted meteors in the annual "Perseid shower" in a program arranged by Franklin Loedhe, Edmonton, university student employed at Dominion Astrophysical Observatory for the summer.

Results will be sent to the National Research Council in Ottawa, which for a number of years has been gathering data to determine the density of particles beyond the earth's atmosphere.

"That must be known before a space ship can be sent away from the earth," Mr. Loedhe said. "For instance, it is easy to see that there would be a much greater chance of it striking a meteor at this time of year, while the shower is on."

Similar groups at Calgary, Edmonton, and Montreal counted the shooting stars, and will in turn send results to the NRC.

NRC findings are made available to United States authorities.

Ottawa returns Aug. 24. Skeena returns Saturday.

AMONG 5,000 HMC Dockyard workers and their families who enjoyed fun and games at annual picnic Wednesday in the grounds of Hatley Castle, Royal Roads, are eight-year-old Marlene Howden and her sister Eileen, 6. Marlene broke her leg while roller-skating on first day of school holidays but wouldn't miss picnic "for anything." Attractions were magic by Frank Merryfield, clowning by Cliff Salmond, track races, softball, tugs-of-war, baby and beauty contests, square dancing, pitching horseshoes—hot dogs and pop.—(Photo by Robin Clarke.)

EX-RCAF CHIEF BLASTS RADAR LINE 'BLUNDER'

Injuries Fatal To Boy

A five-year-old Saanich boy knocked by a flailing fire hose on to sharp rocks Wednesday died of brain and other injuries at Royal Jubilee Hospital early today.

Dead is Donald Richard Stewart, only son of Mr. and Mrs. James McMillan Stewart, 3314 Fircrest Place.

The lad was hurled 20 feet by a catapulting fire hose being unreel by Saanich firemen putting out a grass fire near the Stewart home at 1:30 p.m. Wednesday.

The hose had been connected to a hydrant at Knight and Oakcrest and was being unwound by a truck driving down Knight on to Fircrest.

Donald Stewart and a friend, Russell Batstone, 1541 McKee, were running along Knight when the hose, snagged by a jammed coupling on the truck, suddenly drew taut, then came barreling toward the two boys.

Russell managed to get out of the way but the hose whipped the Stewart boy off his feet and sent him crashing into a sharp rock outcropping.

Prowling Red Warship In Crash

KIEL, Germany (AP) — A Soviet destroyer, prowling in the western Baltic where NATO exercises are in progress, collided in fog with a small German coastal freighter today.

The bow of the 300-ton freighter Christel was crushed but her crew of six escaped injury.

The skipper of the Christel messaged that the Soviet destroyer stood by, then made off into the fog with two other Soviet vessels after it was clear that the freighter was in no danger. The skipper was unable to get the name of the Soviet destroyer.

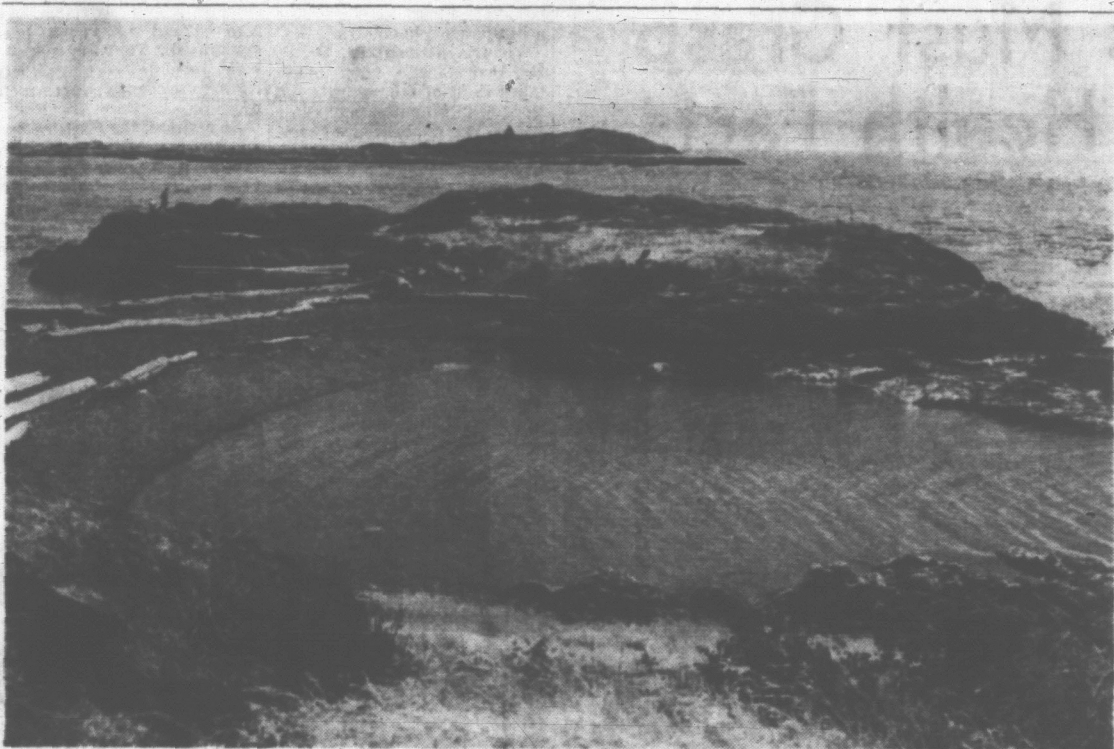

German naval sources said they suspect the three war vessels were operating in the area because the Russians know that Britain, Denmark, Norway and West German naval units are on manoeuvres.

General Scene of Digging with Trial Island in Background

FIRST OF A SERIES

Waterfront Diggers Seek Record of Past

Starting herewith and continuing daily for two weeks The Times will publish an authoritative report on one of the most interesting projects on this part of the island for many years. The author, in the article below, explains the project in his opening paragraph.

By WILSON DUFF

Curator of Anthropology, Provincial Museum

Down at the east end of McNeill Bay or Shoal Bay, between Gonzales Hill and Oak Bay Golf Course, is a beautiful rocky point with twin beaches along its sides. It's a favorite spot for picnics, fishing, and driftwood gathering. It also happens to be an archaeological site, and for the last several days we have had our imaginations at work, wondering about the people who enjoyed this spot before us, 200 or 2,000 years ago.

Now we are going to find out many things about them. We do not have any magic time machine to transport us back through the centuries to prehistoric Indian days, we are going to use the pure detective work of archaeology.

For the next two weeks, a Provincial Museum crew will be conducting a "dig" on the site, and we'll keep Times readers informed our findings with a daily report.

The crew will consist of myself, Assistant Curator Michael Kew, our summer assistants John Sendley and Richard Cox, and assorted volunteers. Cleave Hughes, former chief inspector in the mines department, has already helped out by surveying the site. Mrs. Edith Cross and other capable amateur archaeologists are standing by to do some serious digging. It may be that we can also make room for other interested volunteers if they are willing to abide by the rules of the dig.

Corrosion Threatens Work of Ages

Our site, which will become known to archaeologists as DeRt-1, is not particularly large and probably not very important. We chose it because it is small enough for us to handle and because it is being destroyed gradually year by year by tidal corrosion.

The midden covers only a small area and is about three feet deep. By "midden" we mean the accumulation of shells, ash, stones and other refuse left behind after a long period of human habitation. We do not know what

FOR TITLE FIGHT

'Old Arch' Offers Ingemar Million

MONTREAL (UPI) — Lightweight champion Archie Moore, "Old Man Dynamite" who again knocked out challenger Yvon Durelle — today planned a "quick money" South American tour next month while negotiating for a "three-million-dollar" fight with heavyweight champion Ingemar Johansson.

The ring's all-time knockout king and record-equalling light-heavyweight defender will receive a guaranteed $175,000 for belting out Canadian Durelle Wednesday night at 2:30 of the third round, and he wants to pick up "a couple hundred thousand" in September and October fights in Argentina and Brazil.

Manager Jack Kearns says he has relayed to heavyweight ruler Johansson the offer of a $1,000,000 guarantee to defend against 43-year-old Moore. In Kearns' cable to Johansson at Goteborg, Sweden, he said the million guarantee would be in a bank when Ingemar signs.

Kearns declined to identify the "very important Canadian and American interests" he says will put up the guarantee but predicted a Moore-Johansson fight would draw a $3,000,000 gate.

"Certainly I'd like to fight Johansson," Moore said, "but right now I want to get busy with South American fights. Yes, I may make a defence down there."

Another successful defence would break the record he equalled Wednesday night before 11,555 at the Montreal Forum, where his eighth defence tied the 173-pound division's mark set by Maxie Rosenbloom. Maxie lost the title when he risked it the ninth time against Bob Olin in 1934.

Archie stretched his all-time pro boxing knockout record to 128 when he floored Durelle.

At Goteborg, Johansson said today he would gladly give Moore a shot at his title for a million-dollar guarantee — after he meets Floyd Patterson again. "Old Archie is welcome if the money is right, but only after I have fought Floyd Patterson again," Johansson said.

Costly Project 'Waste of Money'

By DAVE MCINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP) — Group Capt. Charles Limbrick, retired RCAF radar chief, said today the Mid-Canada warning line was a "colossal blunder and waste of money."

He said he strenuously opposed construction of the electronic warning line along the 55th parallel but "the scientists rammed it down our throats."

"I was completely and utterly against this abortion of a Mid-Canada line and nearly lost my job over it," Group Capt. Limbrick said in an interview.

"In fact, I was relieved of my duties for a couple of weeks when I refused to sign an order for the experimental equipment."

Later, Defence Minister Peckham told reporters after a cabinet meeting that the Mid-Canada line is an essential element in the North American warning system.

He said the original identification of enemy planes would be made by the Distant Early Warning line in the Arctic but the route of enemy bombers would be lost if it were not for the Mid-Canada line.

The Mid-Canada line would establish the route of hostile bombers before they entered the Pinetree radar control system, he said. There was "no likelihood" of an attacking force escaping detection.

Group Capt. Limbrick retired last year as RCAF director of radio warfare. Before that, he was director of guided missiles. He was responsible for Canadian radar defences during the Second World War.

"I'm no amateur at this business and know what I'm talking about," he said.

Wanted Big Control Centres Instead

The group captain said he had proposed construction of eight big control radars similar to the one at RCAF Air Division headquarters at Metz, France.

In talks here Tuesday, Defence Minister Peckham and U.S. Defence Secretary Neil McElroy agreed that more heavy radars will have to be built in Canada to control interceptors and missiles.

Group Capt. Limbrick telephoned The Canadian Press today after reading a published CP article describing construction of the Mid-Canada Line as a "colossal goof."

"That article is absolutely right," he said. "The only difference is that I knew about it five years ago."

He said the Mid-Canada Line cost $250,000,000 though the original estimate was less than $100,000,000.

He said $100,000,000 could have been saved by construction of his proposed eight heavy radars and the necessity of building more radars now would have been averted.

'They Can Hang Me From Yardarm'

"I'm so mad I don't care if they hang me from the yardarm for saying all this," Group Capt. Limbrick said.

"I'm furious when I think of the money that was wasted."

He said the Mid-Canada line "was no good in the first place." It couldn't distinguish between aircraft and decoys and it was built too far south.

"I opposed it from the start but was pushed into it," he said.

The Mid-Canada line when built was only an experiment, he said, while radar was proven.

"If anything stinks to high heaven, this is it," Group Capt. Limbrick said.

He said Mid-Canada line was paid for entirely by Canada. The United States paid two-thirds of the cost of Pinetree and Canada one-third. The U.S. financed alone the Distant Early Warning line in the Canadian Arctic.

The RCAF declined immediate comment on Group Capt. Limbrick's statement.

Group Capt. Limbrick, 62, has no civilian job though he was military electronics adviser to Canadian Westinghouse after his retirement from the RCAF.

He said he had not publicly

Big Offensive Claimed By Anti-Castro Forces

MIAMI (AP) — A spokesman for anti-Castro groups in Miami said today a full-scale counter-revolutionary offensive is under way in central Cuba.

The spokesman, who asked not to be identified, told the Miami News that the insurgents are former Cuban soldiers and defectors from Fidel Castro's army who landed near Trinidad from the Dominican Republic.

Jose Eleuterio Pedraza, former Cuban general, is commanding the task force by short-wave radio from the Dominican Republic. The spokesman here said they talked with Pedraza by telephone this morning.

Former dictator Fulgencio

Batista is not a participant in the movement, the spokesman said.

"He is a closed book in Cuba now."

Meanwhile, gunmen struck in Havana today as Castro personally directed the roundup of counter-revolutionaries.

Police exchanged shots with anti-Castro gunmen near the Mexican and Peruvian embassies and the directorate building of Castro's 26th of July revolutionary movement in central Havana.

Occupants of a speeding automobile sprayed the directorate with machine-gun fire, police said.

Castro was leading his forces against 60 or 70 Cubans in Las Villas province. The insurgents were reported to be encircled.

Dig that McNeill Bay project.

If th' radar line kin repel that attack, guess it kin withstand anythin'.

Glad them bridge workers are back on th' job. Thet strike caught 'em with their spans down.
